Watch of Youth Killed in the War Sent to Parents

Kitchener, Ont., Aug. 28.—Fifteen years ago a young soldier who was one of the first to enlist from Kitchener, was killed in France. Yesterday the family received news of a watch given to him by his father and left by him with a comrade before he went into battle for the last time.

R. C. Spindlow of Edmonton wrote to the parents of the late Emmanuel Piquemart, his comrade: "I have always been my aim to find his parents and return to them the watch he gave me before going into battle. All I knew was that his father was a watchmaker in the east and ever since the war I have been trying to locate him."

MILLIONS IN GOLD AND SILVER NOW TRAVEL BY AIR

$150,000,000 of Bullion Is Shipped From Far Goldfields and For Export on Planes

Record Year Reported For Flying; Prince Sees Pressure on Ground Space

London, Aug. 28.—The development of civil flying to every direction during 1929 is recorded in the annual report of the Air Ministry on the progress of civil aviation. During the past year in connection with civil aviation there were 6,932 flights, 29,312 passengers were carried, 839.7 tons of cargo conveyed and 99.3 tons of mails transported. All these figures being far ahead of any previous year. Joy-riding also showed a big advance, there being 53,825 flights in which 123,497 passengers were carried.

A feature of the cargoes was the export of bullion and gold and silver coin to the value of £30,545,151, which was more than equal to the value of similar exports for the previous years. A remarkable instance of the utility of air transport in difficult country is given. Imperial Airways Limited had provided a three-engine high-performance aircraft to operate in the service of the New Guinea Goldfields Limited, who own goldfields in New Guinea.

"These goldfields," it is stated, "were previously separated from the coast by several weeks' journey through almost impassable country, where wheeled traffic could not be used and which includes a range of mountains. By air the journey is regularly accomplished within an hour, and the aircraft has now been in constant use for some time carrying staff, material and food to the goldfields and returning to the coast with gold. It was hoped that arrangements would shortly be concluded for the transport of goods from any railway station in Great Britain to any railway station on the Continent by a combination of rail and air services."

SERVICE TO INDIA AND AUSTRALIA

Referring to the England-India (Australia) service, the report expresses the hope that the journey will be reduced by twenty-four hours. The opening of the service to India by Imperial Airways Limited is described as the event of premier importance during the year. One hundred per cent efficiency was maintained on the Cairo-Bombay route. The Government of India was examining the question of extending the air service from Delhi to Calcutta and Rangoon at the earliest opportunity. Proposals have also been submitted to the Air Ministry for the operation of the remaining section of the England-Australia route—that between Rangoon and Australia, and it is hoped that with the assistance of the various administrations along the route a through service may be inaugurated within the next two years. In a chapter devoted to the technical development of the industry, the report deals in detail with the work of construction of the R100 and R101 and the two airship movements since completion, and says that during her trials the R101 has fully demonstrated her strength and stability and has attained her calculated speed. Certain minor improvements which the trials have shown practicable and desirable are now being carried out.

LIGHT AIRPLANE CLUBS

Thirteen financially-assisted light airplane clubs continued to operate throughout 1929. One total membership of these clubs at the end of the year was 3,648, as compared with 3,588 in the year 1928. Of this number 750 were civil pilots, 2,188, representing an increase of nearly 60 per cent since December 31, 1928, and of these 695 qualified for their licenses on club aircraft, including the Lancashire Airplane Club, Newcastle-upon-Tyne Aero Club and the Yorkshire Airplane Club. Derby and District Aero Club was one of the eight unassisted clubs in existence. The report says that the National Flying services limited scheme embraces the Hantsworth Club and a group of associated clubs at important centres in the provinces, which include Leeds, Hull and Nottingham. A new aerodrome for the Leeds club, which will be nearer the city than the present one, and aerodromes for proposed new centres at Stoke-on-Trent and Middlesbrough are to be established on sites provided by the local corporations. "Consideration is being given by the Air Ministry," it is stated, "to a specification for the construction of a flying boat which will be suitable for passenger carrying on an air line in the Mediterranean, and in which special attention is given to the comfort of the passengers sleeping and restaurant accommodation being provided in the cabin and wings. The total weight of this aircraft will be not less than thirty tons, and three or four engines will be employed. A duration of six hours are anticipated." During the year Great Britain continued to maintain her position as the leading country of the world so far as the export of aeronautical material is concerned, the value being £2,158,667, compared with £1,335,872 in 1928.

PRINCE GEORGE'S FORECAST

Prince George flew to Radlett, Hertfordshire, to open the new aerodrome which has just been completed for Handley Page. The Prince arrived shortly before noon, his machine gliding almost up to the entrance to the main hangar, where the opening ceremony took place. He entered the building looking exhilarated after his flight and something his hair, which had become ruffled in the wind. Declaring the aerodrome operation on the Continent by a combination of rail and air services.

SAFETY IN TRAVEL

The British railway authorities announced with as much pride as an official statement could convey that only three passengers had lost their lives last year. This figure out of a total of 1,702,000,000 passenger journeys is certainly remarkable, but it has only been achieved, according to the railway spokesmen, by dint of the most scrupulous care and an insistence on complete efficiency of both man and machine. Backed by this record it is only claim that the steel way is safer than the air way, but that the Ministry of Transport should insist upon a comparable degree of efficiency on the part of the drivers of motor vehicles, whose toll of human life is becoming appalling every day. The companies are urged to set an example by laying down definite standards of physical and technical qualification for drivers of road vehicles which will come under their control as a result of the new measures.

A "DE LUXE" TRAIN WITHOUT "SUPPLEMENTS"

Passengers between London and Scotland, using what is known as the "Royal Scot" service, now enjoy provision for personal comfort on a scale that challenges comparison with the "de luxe" trains in any country in the world, and without that extra charge commonly called a "supplement." Two new trains have been built by the London Midland and Scottish Railway carriage and wagon department. One of them was drawn up for inspection at Euston. These new trains are precisely 84 feet long, and represent a weight, without the engine, of 412 tons. Each has accommodation for 108 first class passengers and 252 third class. The character of this accommodation makes the new trains something to be talked about. They have been designed by E. J. H. Lemon, and they skillfully embody all the best resources of railway carriage construction proved by experience and some features that are delightfully new. Chief of all the novelties is the elimination of what is called the "waistline" in the coaches. The "waistline" is the part of the seat framework of an ordinary coach which is level with the seated passenger's waist. In the new train it disappears, and instead there are deeper seats with windows. Nothing so generous in providing an uninterrupted field of vision for passengers who delight to watch the flying landscape has ever before been attempted. The advantage is common to every passenger equally, whether he is sitting in a saloon car or in a semi-private compartment with the corridor running outside the sliding doors designed to take full advantage of the deeper windows, and the old obstructions of the look-out on the corridor side almost entirely disappear.

VARIETY IN SEATING ACCOMMODATION

The first class passenger in these new trains will have a choice of three varieties of seating. He may go into a saloon coach panelled with Indian greywood and sit on seats upholstered in old Persian design moquette. He may take his ease in low and roomy leather chairs in a parlor coach. Here he will be able to enjoy the lower small orals framed in oxidized silver without undertaking a rocky passage along the corridor to the dining saloon. There is a delightfully varied third class, if less luxurious than that of the first class, still approximately to luxury. All the seats are especially well sprung, a not unimportant consideration for a full day's journey, and the upholstery has been chosen with a care to rest for the eye. One other provision of these new trains removes against English railway, often levelled against English railways, and their walls are lined with washable surfaces.

by air. Every new airframe that is opened brings that time nearer."

The Prince was much amused by one of the airplanes housed in the large hangar. It was a 1910 model, one of the earliest machines to be built by the company, and nicknamed at the time, because of its color, "Yellow Peril." After the opening ceremony the Prince watched a display by aircraft over the aerodrome. During a tour of the aerodrome he saw a new type of civil passenger machine which is just nearing completion. This machine will accommodate forty passengers, a large increase on the number at present carried by machines in use. After lunching at the aerodrome the Prince flew back to London. He wore no special flying kit except for a helmet and a parachute was strapped over his grey lounge suit.

Lord Dawson Says Lord Beaverbrook Is Great New Force

Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—Lord Beaverbrook has aroused in England an enthusiasm unknown since the end of the war," said Lord Dawson of Penn. speaking before the Winnipeg Board of Trade yesterday.

"Beaverbrook has gripped the people, found the truth and therein his soul."

the noted physician, here attending the British Medical Association convention, continued. "Beaverbrook's influence is a force cutting diagonally through all parties of England and not confined to any one party. It is found in a distinct movement in the Labor Party, now in power. It is still more deeply rooted in the Conservative Party. The movement led by Lord Beaverbrook is gathering force day by day."

Referring to the Empire, the King's physician said: "The British Empire has reached that point where it must move either forward or backward. There can be no standstill. Unless we all, units of the Empire, get our heads together and discuss co-operation, economic and cultural, we can be sure that only a backward trend awaits us."

TWO MINERS RESCUED

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 28.—Two men engulfed by a mine subsidence here yesterday afternoon were removed shortly before midnight and taken to hospital for treatment. A rescue squad had worked for more than nine hours to extricate them. Throughout most of the operations there was imminent danger both for the entombed men and their rescuers.

Automobile Pound For Vancouver Cars

Vancouver, Aug. 28.—Vancouver is to have a properly constructed vehicle pound, to accommodate all vehicles picked up by police as obstructing traffic on city streets. A by-law to establish a vehicle pound was passed by the city council Wednesday, sponsored by Ald. H. J. Degraeve, chairman of the police committee. Thus, wrongly parked autos will have a new home.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL PLAN FOR NARCOTICS

Prof. W. F. Dixon, Speaking at Winnipeg, Suggests Official Factories

Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—Government control of the production of narcotic drugs was suggested yesterday as an effective means of combating their illicit use in a clinical address to British Medical Association delegates here by Prof. W. F. Dixon, F.R.S., of Cambridge University. Such a plan would mean limiting of the number of factories by international agreement.

"Each manufacturing nation should have one factory over which the government would exert a direct and complete control, including the price at which the products were sold," suggested Prof. Dixon. "If such a system were adopted it would represent a real control of the narcotic traffic, for it is not the crude products, opium and coca leaves, which are a menace to civilization, but the chemical principles derived from them."

"Ten thousand tons of opium represents the opium equivalent of the aggregate of opiates manufactured annually in the world, and seventy-seven tons represents the estimated legitimate medicinal requirements of the globe."

"I would say that citizens of the United States are more sensitive to pain than folks of most other lands," said Prof. Dixon, in an interview following his address. He mentioned the per capita consumption of all narcotic drugs annually, reduced to terms of opium, showed the United States in the lead. Continental figures as he gave them, in milligrams were: United States, 245; Europe, 152; Africa, 24; Asia, 5. "There is no doubt," he said, "that an enormous amount of heroin is smuggled into the United States yearly."

ONCE STORE PRINCE, SIEGEL DIES POOR

Lakewood, N.J., Aug. 28.—Henry Siegel, seventy, once a merchant prince of New York and Chicago, died in comparative obscurity here on Monday.

Formerly a financial leader, business reverses in 1914 left him almost penniless. As president of Siegel Stores Corporation, he once controlled Siegel, Cooper and Company, in Chicago, the big store, the Fourteenth Street store and the Simpson-Crawford Company in New York and stores in London.

Two titled daughters survive him. Lady Cavendish of London, and Countess Carlo Dentice de Frasco.

B.C. Coal Output Still Declining

Coal production in British Columbia showed a decline of 20,430 tons for the July output, over the corresponding figures for the same period last year. It is reported by officials of the Department of Mines. The total British Columbia output in July 1930, was 137,118 tons, compared with 157,548 tons in July, 1929. Vancouver Island contributed 74,697 tons, a slight increase from 72,850 tons in the same month last year.

By area, the July production on Vancouver Island is reported as follows: Canadian Collieries Limited, 33,655 tons, the bulk coming from Comox Colliery, which produced 18,515 tons; Western Fuel Corporation, 28,601 tons, a gain of 2,600 over July last year; other collieries contributed 12,441 tons. Total Vancouver Island, 74,697 tons.

In the Nicola-Princeton district 13,932 tons were produced in July last, being a decrease from the figures of last year. In the East Kootenay area, 48,469 tons were mined. The full July total for the Province was 137,118 tons.

Insurance Officers Elect Ontario Man

Edmonton, Aug. 28.—R. Leighton Foster, Ontario superintendent of insurance, was named president of the Association of the Superintendents of Insurance of the Provinces of Canada, at the concluding session of the association's conference here to-day.

B. A. Dugal, the Quebec superintendent, was re-elected to the vice-presidency, and J. B. Armstrong, deputy superintendent for Ontario, was named secretary-treasurer. The venue for the next annual conference was left undecided, but will be agreed upon by the members of the association within a few weeks.

PRINCIPLE ENDORSED
The only resolution made public following the private session, was one which endorsed the principle of uniform requirements for life insurance agents' licenses.

TELEVISION TEST PROVES SUCCESS

FOUR MOTORISTS KILLED

Plattsburgh, N.Y., Aug. 28.—A passenger train that ploughed into an automobile at a blind, unguarded crossing north of here yesterday evening killed four persons. Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Labounty of West Chazy, N.Y., and their twelve-year-old daughter, Ruth, and Mrs. Albert Labounty, their daughter-in-law. All but Harold Labounty were killed outright. He died in a hospital.

FARM RELIEF PLANS WORKED OUT IN THE U.S.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Primary responsibility for drought relief was placed on affected states yesterday by their banking representatives.

In reporting the major part of the burden was for the states, the bankers recommended that existing federal agencies which could lend aid be utilized to the fullest extent. They also detailed the help government agencies could give.

"We appreciate that these suggestions," the bankers reported, "do not offer that full measure of relief which unfortunately seems to be anticipated in many quarters. Neither, perhaps, will such a programme fully meet the emergency that exists."

They added the summary given included, however, all legal means of assistance now available.

Formation of agricultural credit corporations to operate as intermediaries between the farmers and the intermediate credit banks was urged wherever necessary.

Extensions of existing agricultural credit corporations and of existing co-operative marketing associations also was recommended in a report to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, chairman of the National Drought committee, for transmission to President Hoover.

Existing co-operative marketing associations were advised to avail themselves of "the liberal financial assistance which is offered by the Federal Farm Board."

AIRPLANE PILOT AND SPECTATOR LOSE THEIR LIVES

Chicago, Aug. 28.—A racing U.S. navy plane, drumming a thunder of speed, plunged its pilot to flaming death, killed an onlooker and jeopardized the lives of horror-stricken hundreds of spectators at the National Air Races here yesterday. The victims were Lieut. J. P. Deshazo of Montevideo, Ala., and Louis Weiner, a Chicago concessionaire. Seven spectators were injured, none seriously.

Turning the last pylon with navy planes in a fifty-mile speed race, Deshazo's plane, doing 125 miles an hour, veered as the flier attempted a barrel roll, crashed and burst into flames. He was 100 feet from the ground, and the plane fell a short distance from the south bleachers.

Weiner was struck by the plane, which dropped in front of his concession stand. Most of those injured were struck by flying fragments when the gasoline tank of the plane exploded. Deshazo was splattered with burning oil.

It will never be known, but many aviators believe Deshazo went to his death because he manoeuvred his plane to prevent striking the bleachers head-on and causing a tragedy of major proportions.

Deshazo was one of the best known stars fliers of the navy. He was a member of the 1929 battle fleet stuntling trio, and again this year was a member of a navy team known as the "Unholy Three."

CANADIAN WHEAT POOL NOW JOINS INTERNATIONAL

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 28.—The Congress of the International Co-operative Alliance yesterday confirmed by a large majority the decision of its central committee to accept the application of the Canadian wheat producers' co-operative societies for membership in the alliance.

The decision marks an important step for the alliance, which has hitherto concentrated its efforts on consumers' co-operation. A resolution was moved by Mr. Thomas Allen, vice-chairman of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, endorsing the efforts of the alliance to establish organic relations with organizations of agricultural producers, and was accepted by the congress.

A message from the Canadian wheat pools was brought by Andrew Cairn, statistician of the Canadian co-operative wheat pools. Mr. Cairn stated the wheat pools were true co-operative societies. There was no clash of interests between the co-operative producers and consumers, he declared. On the contrary, it was desirable they should understand each other and work together.

Lord Dawson Now Is Indian Chief

Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—While a medicine man chanted of departed glories and tom-toms solemnly throbbed, Lord Dawson of Penn., physician to King George, yesterday received the highest honor in the power of the Cree Indian nation, being formally admitted to chieftainship of the Cree, "Big Medicine Man to the Big Chief," runs the translation of the distinguished physician's Indian title, by which he will be known to all Canadian Indians. In Cree the title is Kitchi-Okomow-O-Maski-Kie-Okomow.

At the same time, Lord Dawson was presented with a beaded blanket, wampum pouch and pipe, and a magnificent feathered headdress was placed on his head.

EIGHT KILLED IN FIGHT

THREE ARE FACING LIQUOR TRIALS

Wenatchee, Wash., Aug. 28.—For the fourth time this year federal investigations of liquor operations in as many sections of the Pacific Northwest have resulted in accusations against high public officials.

Following closely on similar actions in Mullikan and Wallace Idaho, and in Seattle, County Sheriff Pete Wheeler and two other prominent officials here yesterday were drawn in the net of another grand jury which completed its deliberations in Spokane.

Charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law and with intimidating witnesses in liquor trials, Wheeler, sheriff for the last three years and resident of this city for forty-five years, posted $5,000 bond and was bound over for arraignment in Spokane. His deputy sheriff, George Strevell and former Chief Deputy M. J. Buckley, who only recently was named clerk of the county board of commissioners, were also arrested on secret indictments.

TWO FLIERS LOSE LIVES

Grand Forks, N.D., Aug. 28.—H. L. Barnes of Grand Forks, the pilot, was instantly killed, and Jack Greve, man-aging editor of The Grand Forks Herald, was fatally injured "ate yesterday in an airplane crash at Reynolds, eighteen miles south of here."

"BUILD B.C. PAYROLLS" The Milk For Infants

We like to tell what Pacific Milk can do for infants. The letters from mothers give many facts. But the frequent statement that Pacific Milk saved the baby's life has overshadowed all else that it seems difficult to mention anything else. A feature of the letters also is the number of times mothers say doctors recommended Pacific Milk.

OUR SCENIC ATTRACTIONS

AN IMPORTANT TRUTH WHICH MR. A. C. LOVEKIN of California, who has made a name for himself as one of the best-known conservationists on this continent, emphasized in an interview he gave The Times the other day was that if we permit all our scenic attractions to be destroyed, it will take years of time and millions of dollars to restore them at a later date. To illustrate this point he recounted how the state of California now is spending $12,000,000 to buy back and preserve tracts which were allowed to get into private hands as homesteads.

Some years ago Mr. Lovekin acquired a hundred acres at Sproat Lake, and after spending a holiday there and exploring various sections of the West Coast recently he is more enthusiastic than he ever was over the possibilities which that part of Vancouver Island presents for development as a tourist resort, or several tourist resorts. In his opinion the West Coast area by Long Beach and back through Kennedy Lake towards Strathcona Park could be converted into the greatest playground in America if handled in the right way. It satisfies almost every demand for scenery, while a fine climate and a variety of everything from rolling ocean to snowy mountain peaks further emphasize the lavishness of Nature's gifts.

The matter of turning over to the Dominion Parks branch of the Canadian government certain sections to which the West Coast Road would give access, as part of the national parks system, was discussed some time ago, and public opinion favored such a course. It is more imperative now than ever that this action be taken.

Mr. Lovekin points out that the possibilities of Long Beach for development as a resort are almost unlimited; but all this is going to waste because of its inaccessibility. A road to this locality would be an investment that would return the capital outlay many times within a few years. Here is an opportunity for the provincial government to show vision and enterprise.

MR. STEVENS HAS A LAPSE

BEFORE HE LEFT CRANBROOK ON Monday, Hon. H. H. Stevens, now member for East Kootenay and Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Bennett government, issued a statement in which he dealt with the affairs of his new constituency and made the following observations with regard to the coal mining industry:

I believe there are great opportunities for development in the East Kootenay district, and while, for the time being, the coal mining industry is languishing, I am hoping that by stimulating the use of coal, and by encouraging the establishment of industry and by checking the importation of Russian and American coal into the province we shall be able to do much towards increasing the output of coal in the Crow's Nest Pass district; thus greatly improving the conditions of the workers in the mines, who at present are working only five days out of each two weeks, which is quite insufficient to maintain a man and his family.

Mr. Stevens does not say how he proposes to check the importation of American coal into the province; but we assume he will ask the government to increase the tariff, now fifty cents a ton on all soft coal coming into this country from the United States. Our exports of soft coal to the neighboring republic are subject to the same duty.

The new Minister of Trade and Commerce seems to have forgotten a little bit of history about the coal mining industry of this province and its relation to imports of coal from the United States. Last year when the Maritime Provinces applied to the Tariff Board for an increase in the duty on soft coal the Tolmie government engaged counsel at Ottawa to oppose that application with all the arguments and vigor at his command. This action by the Tolmie government was prompted by the fear that if Canada increased the duty on coal, the United States would do the same, and the British Columbia coal mines would be cut out of the United States market. This, of course, would mean that more British Columbia miners would be thrown out of work.

Happily the application of the Maritime Provinces at that time was not granted. Now Mr. Stevens apparently would provoke a tariff war in coal with the United States, the certain result of which would deprive British Columbia coal of an important market and seriously cripple the industry. Parliament should restrain these ardent protectionists before they "protect" the country out of all its markets. Mr. Stevens should remember, too, that he represents British Columbia in the cabinet; it is his duty to promote its interests. Already we have lost a large part of our markets in the South Seas as a legacy of tariff hostility to other countries, and from this British Columbia is the chief sufferer.

Canada's economic life depends upon the promotion of markets for her surplus commodities without which she can not maintain her productive machinery at more than a few months in the year. As far as coal is concerned, the Tolmie government should fight without quarter any fiscal policy which would further hamper this basic industry in British Columbia.

A TRIFLE TOO ENDURING

POSSIBLY IT'S JUST THE SUMMER heat, which always makes things seem hard to bear; but it does seem to grow increasingly certain, every day, that life would flow along a little bit more smoothly and happily if all of these endurance-contest gentlemen would quietly and speedily remove themselves from circulation.

It was not so bad at first. There was, originally, quite a thrill in seeing just how much punishment human bodies would stand. When two men can sit in an airplane continuously for three weeks or more, the feat is bound to have a certain amount of interest; and for a while, at least, there was a weird sort of fascination in watching people stay out of contact with the earth for a longer period of time than anybody had done since the world began.

But we are getting case-hardened now. Someone really should take all these ambitious young people aside and explain to them that it is not funny any more.

After all, it is not the length of time you can do a thing without stopping that counts so much, as the way you do it. The latest endurance fliers set a record of upwards of 600 hours in the air; yet, on the whole, their flight was not quite as significant as the 40-second affair contrived by Orville Wright a quarter of a century ago. Quantity is still a trifle less important than quality.

Probably there is something to be said for the dogged quality of determination that stirs in the breasts of these endurance-record seekers. Yet determination, after all, is not the highest virtue attainable. The beaten path that the world is supposed to tread through the wilderness to the door of the manufacturer of superior mousetraps is never made because of the mousetrap-maker's long-windedness.

The editor of The New Mexico State Tribune of Albuquerque recently hit upon an idea that seems to have possibilities in this connection. The boys of his city were indulging in an orgy of tree-sitting—surely one of the most harmless but, at the same time, dizzy, of all competitions possible—and this editor decided it had gone far enough. So, through his paper, he offered prizes consisting of movie tickets—not to the successful sitters, but to such lads as would recover their senses, come down out of their trees and return to a normal life on the ground. It worked, and Albuquerque has not been bothered with tree-sitters since.

ANOTHER PIONEER PASSES

THE DEATH YESTERDAY OF MRS. Alexander Wilson removes another member of that fast-thinning band of pioneers who contributed so much to the progress of this community during the latter part of the last century. For nearly the Palestine's allotted span of years Mrs. Wilson had resided in Victoria, and during that long period she endeared herself to a very wide circle of friends. Possessed of a happy disposition, a fund of humor, a memory which lent special interest to her anecdotes of earlier days in this district, she was one of the most popular of old-time residents. Like so many of the men and women in numerous walks of life who have given much to Canada, Mrs. Wilson was a native of Scotland, and her husband, who died several years ago, was a prominent businessman here. The Times expresses its sympathy with members of the family in their loss.

THE DANGER OF DELAY

THE FACT THAT ONE PERSON IN every seven over the age of thirty now dies of cancer makes it extremely important that the general public take advantage of every facility that medical science offers for the checking of this disease. In this connection the current bulletin of the American Society for the Control of Cancer prints an article that is worth quoting from.

"If there is one fact of which we have clear and certain knowledge," writes Dr. David Arthur Welsh, "it is that early cancer is often curable. Yet in this enlightened age one is astounded at the extent to which patients will allow cancers to grow before they seek advice. They hesitate and hesitate until they are indeed lost. Whereas if they had consulted their doctor at an earlier stage, and the doctor had known what to do, a tragedy might have been averted. The experience of all who have had dealings with cancer is darkened by those tragedies of 'too late.' I do not hesitate to say that many of the deaths now credited to cancer should more properly be ascribed to neglect."

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

DAIRY PRODUCTION UP

Canada Week by Week

Canada continues to occupy a prominent place in dairy production. According to a report just released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the production of creamery butter last year amounted to 174,724,495 pounds valued at $67,291,196. This represented an increase over the previous year in both quantity and value.

A falling off occurred in the production of Canadian cheese which reached only 118,646,000 pounds—about 26,000 pounds—about 26,000,000 pounds less than a year ago. Opportunity for the further expansion of the dairy industry in Canada is indicated by the fact that during 1929 considerable quantities of dairy production were imported in order to meet home requirements.

BARRIE MANUSCRIPTS

The Times Literary Supplement

There were two very important and interesting Barrie manuscripts at Sotheby's sale. One of these was the autograph manuscript of "Better Dead," entirely in the author's handwriting, complete on seventy-nine pages octavo, the property of a gentleman to whom it was given by the author, and this fetched £2,400. The second Barrie manuscript was that of an entirely unpublished and unrecorded work, Bohemia, a new and original comedy in three acts, on 106 pages quarto, written while the author was a student at Edinburgh, 1880. It was the property of Mr. Robert J. Younger of Mansfield, Callander, and fetched £440.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

FROM THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES OF AUGUST 28, 1905

Portsmouth, N.H.—The Associated Press has definite knowledge that several days ago President Roosevelt was authorized on behalf of the Japanese to waive all claims for indemnity or reimbursement for the cost of the war, and to cede back to the Russians the north half of Sakhalin Island.

George Riley, Victoria's M.P. at Ottawa, returned yesterday with Mrs. Riley from the Dominion capital. Mountain Chief Jim of the Pacheena, San Juan River, is a pretty sick Indian and is looking for medical attendance.

On behalf of the farmers and miners of his district, Robert Borland one of British Columbia's best-known pioneers, visited the city yesterday to petition the government concerning the construction of a road through the golden Cariboo.

Ottawa—Professor Prince, chairman of the British Columbia Fishery Commission, has arranged to reach Victoria about the end of the month, where the first sitting of the commission will be held.

Loose Ends

An astounding thing happens out our way—Councillor Wriggledown fulfills his trust, having his eye on the next election—and our road is being built at last.

By H. E. W.

A GREAT EVENT is transpiring out our way this afternoon, the tumult of which makes it very difficult to attend to the mighty job of filling this column with 1,000 words more or less. It is not merely the outward manifestations of this event which are distracting, though they are bad enough. It is our excitement over the event itself which keeps us all of a flutter. Yes, they are building our road.

NOW OF course you cannot be expected to understand the significance of such an announcement. Four hundred yards of road through the fields out our way hardly seems, at first blush, worthy of any special headlines. But there you are wrong, because you do not know the history of this tremendous undertaking. You do not know what a mighty part it has played in the affairs of this district, what political careers it has made and broken, what elections it has won and lost, what alternate hope and despair it has poured into the hearts of George Pudgey, Mr. Beek, Mr. Glumby, Mr. Whiffleton and the other worthy people out our way.

YOU MUST understand, then, that the hopes of this district for years have been centred on the construction of a road which would connect us with the main highway 400 yards distant. A small matter, 400 yards, mathematically speaking, but in that space we have found enough misery to cover as many miles. In the summer our road has been pleasant enough, winding as it does through the fields between the oak trees. But in the winter many a time Mr. Pudgey's wagon has sunk half-way to its hubs in mud and has been left there, a dismal monument to our pioneer spirit, while the horses have sloshed slowly home through the mire.

IN THE WORST weather few ventured to take a car down our road, and those who did usually regretted it. More than once, indeed, the neighborhood has had to turn out in the darkness of a wet December night to help Mr. Beek extricate his ancient car from the black clutches of our road. And the picture of us wallowing in the mud almost up to our knees, pushing from behind, pulling from in front, throwing brush and fence posts down behind us, and cursing every municipality while Mr. Beek made the engine roar and roared out instructions himself, and Mr. Whiffleton, being too stout to help, waved a lantern and yelled advice from the side, must have been very inspiring.

DO NOT IMAGINE, however, that the Anglo-Saxon independence of our race is dead out our way. With the unerring instinct of our ancestors, as soon as we found ourselves faced with this predicament we went boldly to the government, in this case the municipal council. And when the government failed to redress our grievances, we instantly sought redress by those constitutional means which are the heritage of all British peoples. That is to say, we commenced to conspire and agitate.

FIRST OF ALL, we agitated the councillor who was fortunate to represent our district in the municipal council. As he lived four miles away and was spending all his appropriation on another road, where more voters lived, he could not share our view that the entire fate of the municipality depended on the immediate construction of our road. Therefore, exercising that sagacity for which our ancestors had died, and all the people on our road (there were six of us, Mrs. Glumby having failed to register on the voters' list and Mr. Whiffleton being too stout to walk to the polls) went out and voted against our councillor. As a result, of course, he was defeated, wretched man, but the fact that several hundred other people also were also voted against him may have had something to do with it.

HAVING ELECTED a new councillor we were confident (being innocent of the wiles of municipal politics) that right would prevail at last and our road would be fixed. So we asked our new councillor, Mr. Slump, to come over and view the great predicament for which we were in the lurch. But Mr. Slump, having been elected by a majority of 567, and noting that there were only six voters on our road, was strangely cold towards us. When we grew impatient, and Mr. Beek even went so far as to suggest in a covert way that we might combine against him at the next election, Mr. Slump assumed an air of outraged civic virtue. "Go on!" said Mr. Slump, flushed with his great majority of 567, "go on and do your worst, and see where you get! No where is where you get! And," he added very profoundly as he marched off, "remember Slump is sick!" With which notable sentiment he left us flat.

SO OUR ROAD was not fixed that year. About December, however, Mr. Slump came around again, this time in a more friendly spirit, for the election was only two weeks away. He brought a road foreman with him. He paced up and down the road in great figure, and told us that he had thought that he could fix our road soon after the turn of the year, he shook hands all 'round, patted Mr. Beek's little girl on the head and left.

THERE WAS some perplexity on our road after that. As freeborn Britons we were determined to go to the polls and vote for our collective conscience and the public welfare dictated; but we could not be sure that Mr. Slump would fix the road. On the other hand, while we could not be intimidated in our exercise of the franchise, we were pretty sure that if we didn't vote for Mr. Slump and he were elected, our road would never be fixed. As this was mid-winter, and Mr. Beek's car was stuck fast in the mud, where it seemed doomed to remain until spring, our position was critical.

AT LAST we determined on a bold course. We decided to throw our whole weight ruthlessly against Mr. Slump and behind Mr. Wriggledown, from whom we secured a definite promise that if he were elected our road would be fixed within the fortnight. As you would have expected, Mr. Wriggledown was elected by seven votes, and he attributed his success to the solid vote of our road (not knowing that three of us had failed to go to the polls, as polling day was cold and miserable).

THAT WAS last December and still our road was not fixed. For one reason or another Councillor Wriggledown found that the project was too vast to be undertaken, and would cost $350, without mature thought, and our plans dragged on into summer when, because the road was quite passable, we neglected to continue our agitation. Then of a sudden, without the least warning, trucks full of rocks, workmen with sledge hammers, a foreman with a large moustache and a young engineer, all descended on us this afternoon and the great scheme is under way.

COUNCILLOR WRIGGLEDOWN has fulfilled his trust, and vindicated those great constitutional principles which he is sworn to uphold. Why, we cannot imagine; unless it be that the municipality, having fined me $20 for speeding, has determined in a paroxysm of generosity to give me something for my money. Or perhaps this event is not so unconnected with another event which will occur at the polls not so many months from now, and on which Mr. Wriggledown is already beginning to cast a wary weather eye.

Duncan District to Have Farmers' Market

Chamber of Commerce Favors Development of Home Market for Cowichan District Produce; Soldiers Fed American Potatoes During Manoeuvres.

Special to The Times
Duncan, August 28.—The farmers of Duncan and Cowichan district will shortly be served by a farmers' market and selling agency, as a result of the initiative of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce, which on Tuesday evening swung behind a comprehensive plan for organization and financing a centre for disposal of locally-grown produce. The meeting was held at the Fire Hall, with President H. T. Reid in the chair, and was unusually well attended.

A special committee which has been drafting plans for a market suggested that a portion of the Agricultural Hall grounds be converted to this purpose. Businessmen in Duncan will be asked to subscribe $1 per month for six months and farmers of the district will be invited to participate practically and financially. A. H. Peterson said this district has been riding on the crest of the lumber industry for ten years and had neglected home produce, and a local market and selling agency for local produce was a long-felt want.

"Your local farmer ships his products to Victoria, and I have known instances where the goods stayed on the same truck and were shipped back to Duncan traders," he asserted. "We import about 50 per cent above our local production, whereas with a market and agency we could ship 50 per cent more than we consumed. Farm produce, especially meat, is far too dear in Duncan. A home market for home products would soon remedy that."

S. R. Kirkham agreed with the selling agency clause of the committee's recommendation, but not with the idea of having a market, which was a matter warranting a round-table conference with Duncan businessmen. Major Battray suggested that with the logging camps reopen they be asked to purchase supplies locally.

SOLDIERS RATIONS
It was stated that thirty sacks of potatoes supplied the recent militia manoeuvres had American fallies on the bags and E. Carbery declared that all supplies for the manoeuvres were handled through local traders. Mr. Kirkham said storekeepers had to quote the lowest possible figures, and in order to do so had to patronize the cheapest market.

Dr. Garner said something was wrong somewhere to allow Orientals to get control of the grocery business as they had done. "I believe we have not got a white grocery business in Duncan," he said. The chamber agreed, and when the market comes into existence only produce grown by whites will be handled.

Mr. Peterson said there were 500 acres of Soldier Settlement Board land idle in the district, and probably 2,000 other acres producing nothing, because there was no local market.

To stimulate interest in the campaign to buy Cowichan produce, a dinner of home produce will be held in Duncan on September 11, when Premier Tolmie will be present.

YOUNG ROAD
The official opening of the Young Road, to take place on September 11, will be attended by representatives of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce. A luncheon will be given at the Riverside Inn prior to the opening.

Dr. Garner said the Duncan Chamber should be extended actively to the Lake, and steps taken to organize a branch of Duncan Chamber at the Lake. Mr. Smythe concurred and said the weight of one strong chamber would be far more beneficial than two weak chambers. He moved that the president appoint a committee to take up the matter.

A reassessment for fire insurance in Duncan has been promised by underwriters.

GASOLINE PRICE
The committee on gasoline charges in Duncan reported success in operating with the municipality in persuading the wholesalers to reduce their figure by two cents a gallon, and that an arrangement had been made for the local retailers to further reduce prices by an additional cent. This the retailers had done for the first day or so, but had then broken faith, the excuse being that they pay higher license fees for pumps than is charged in other towns. The committee are still working and the chamber adopted the progress report.

Protests of inadequate freight shed accommodation at Cowichan Bay were referred to a joint committee of the public works committee and trans-

PRICE OF LAND IN ENGLAND

(W. Beach Thomas in The Spectator)
From time to time I have given examples here of the absurdly low price of land in many parts of England. A really pitiful instance is to be added to the list. A farm with a good homestead—both house and outbuildings—has just been sold freehold at the inclusive price of £4 10s. an acre. The money would not build the house or equip the farm with buildings. The land is, therefore, reckoned as a minus quantity. It is in fact in many cases actually cheaper to buy a farm with a house than to buy the house without the farm. Apart from the present depression it is, and has long been, a curious fact in the economics of farms that in some countries farmers themselves, though often immensely fond of their homes, do not consider their houses. They regard the rent as rent for the land and expect the house, however good, to be thrown in—and it is.

The farm just sold at £4 10s. an acre was known at one time as good land; but land of this sort goodness is no longer of value anywhere. It answers to the general description of wheat and bean land; and nowhere in the world have I ever seen such heavy crops of beans as farmers once grew there. The plant flourishes in heavy clay; and clay has a double quality, has compensating virtues and vices. It contains every mineral that plants require, but it is difficult to work; and now that the labor bill is of overmastering importance the mechanical drawbacks more than outweigh the chemical virtues. Yet when all is considered £4 10s. an acre for house and land between Peterborough and London makes an economic portent.

FRECKLES

A Simple, Safe Way to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There is no longer the slightest need of being ashamed of your freckles, since it is now an easy matter to fade out these homely, rusty-brown spots with Othine and gain a clear, beautiful complexion.

After a few nights' use of this dainty white cream you will find that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It's seldom that more than an ounce of Othine is needed to clear the skin of these unsightly blotches.

Be sure to ask at any drug or department store for Othine double strength. It's always sold with guarantee of money back if it does not remove every last freckle and give you a lovely, milk-white complexion.

CAPTAIN LOST WITH HIS SHIP

New York, Aug. 28.—Fouled in the rigging, Captain Estes of the Clyde-Mallory freighter Neches sank with his ship in New York Harbor, off Staten Island yesterday evening after the vessel had collided with a barge.

The chief engineer said the vessel sank, carrying the captain down as he was trying to untangle him. All other twenty-four members of the crew were saved.

The Neches was a 1,610-ton vessel.

THE HORSELESS CARRIAGE

The people you see here are having loads of fun. They are burling a new invention called "the horseless carriage." They believe that automobiles are only a passing fad.

Poking fun at the "horseless carriage" was a favorite sport of the Gay Nineties. But what makes this scene particularly interesting is that it took place in Sarnia—now the home of Imperial Oil's greatest refinery, devoted to the production of gasolines and motor oils.

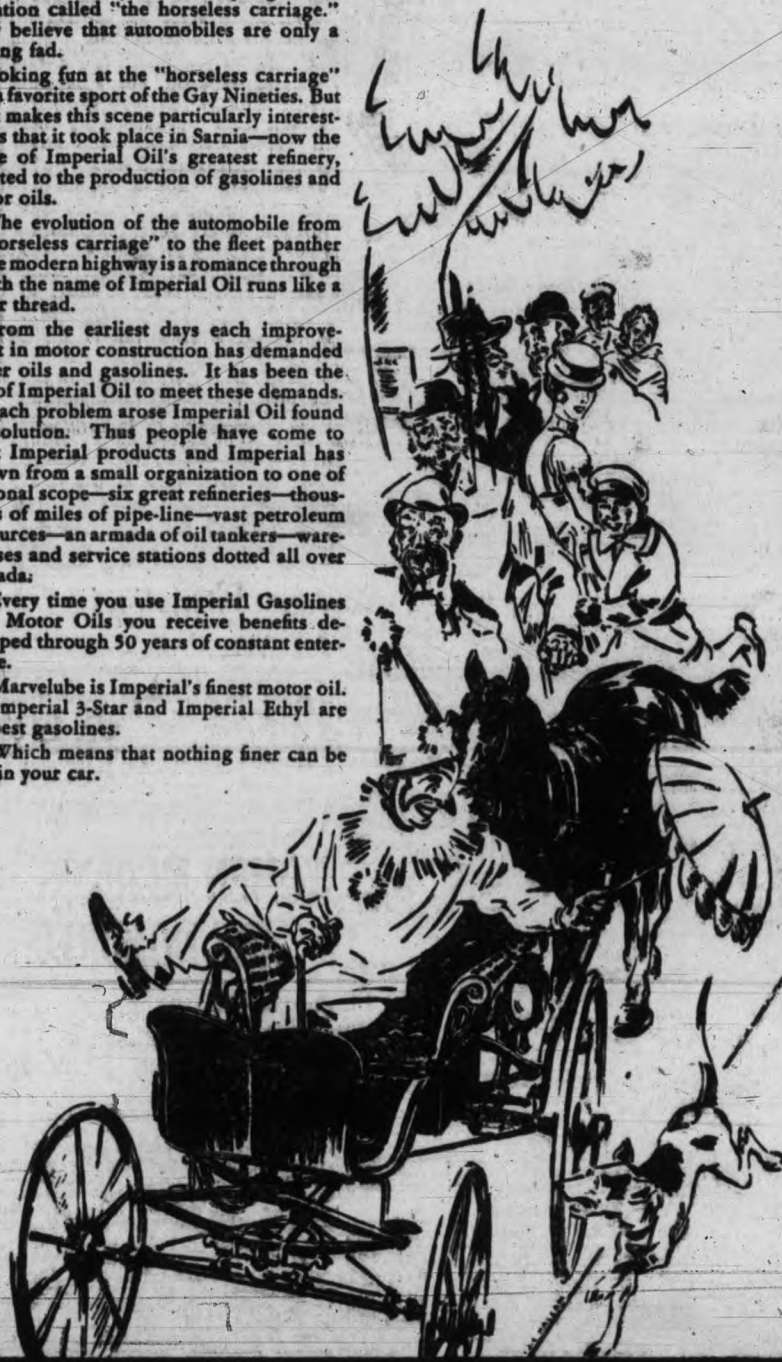

The evolution of the automobile from a "horseless carriage" to the fleet panther of the modern highway is a romance through which the name of Imperial Oil runs like a silver thread.

From the earliest days each improvement in motor construction has demanded better oils and gasolines. It has been the job of Imperial Oil to meet these demands. As each problem arose Imperial Oil found its solution. Thus people have come to trust Imperial products and Imperial has grown from a small organization to one of national scope—six great refineries—thousands of miles of pipe-line—vast petroleum resources—an armada of oil tankers—warehouses and service stations dotted all over Canada.

Every time you use Imperial Gasolines and Motor Oils you receive benefits developed through 50 years of constant enterprise.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil. Imperial 3-Star and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.

YOUR BABY and MINE

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

ALL CHILDREN EXPERIMENT WITH SLAPPING AND BITING

The following letters would indicate that both slapping and biting are fairly universal habits in the child from eighteen months. It remains for the mother to treat them as experiments in conduct rather than efforts of the child to be "mean."

"At eighteen months," says Mrs. C. P., "my girl has acquired the habit of biting and scratching and slapping. My two sisters who idolize her laugh when she does it. What can I do about it?"

I have slapped and bitten and scratched her but two minutes later she is doing it again.

A leaflet offered by this department, "What To Do When Baby Slaps," should help you clear up that situation. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for it, please.

Laughing at baby for slapping will never discourage it. If you are to teach this child that slapping, biting and striking are wrong, you must first of all curb your own disposition to do the same to her. Restrain yourself. Revenge is not an educational process. Put the child in a room by herself and ignore her when she does this. If she enjoys your companionship and attention, this is a real punishment to her and shows her that her actions have been unpleasant and anti-social.

PUNISHMENT INEFFECTIVE

Mrs. A. N. writes in the same vein. "My daughter of two and one-half plays with my friend's daughter of three. My baby always slaps and bites and my friend thinks I should punish her. I do, but it does no good and makes her so stubborn. She stands on the street and cries and wants to slap every child she sees. My friend and I will be satisfied with your solution."

Both slapping and biting appear naturally in every child merely as a trial. If the mother treats them as such and does not retaliate in kind, the child stops. Your child may have a dozen reasons for irritable conduct. Slapping and biting are just evidences of them. How about the child's diet and her weight? How about her sleeping hours both day and night? How much freedom has she in the house to run and play and climb and act as children of this age want to act? If she is scolded and punished and nagged and is tired and underfed, she would be cross enough to bite and strike everyone she sees (just as you say she does). You need to treat the cause of this conduct, not the conduct itself.

REMEDY HOME FITTING

I know this is always the hardest kind of advice to take. Everyone wants a solution to the problem, and not the cause of the problem. But well cared for children, who are treated kindly and have plenty of normal freedom around their homes, do not continue to act this way.

For the time being, separate the children and do not let them play together. Centre your attention on getting the child's disposition sweetened by eliminating every sort of friction and improving her physical self and seeing that she gets more sleep. I imagine if you do this slapping and biting will disappear. Send for our leaflets on diet, sleep, and obedience and punishment (which indicates the best way to teach a child obedience without painful punishments). A self-addressed, stamped envelope should accompany your request for them.

LT.-GOVERNOR EATS LEMON PIE

Samples Famous Delicacy at Port Haney Logging Camp

Vancouver B.C., Aug. 28.—When Lieutenant-Governor R. Randolph Bruce was in London a few months ago he had the pleasure of dining with Right Hon. Ramsey MacDonald.

"What stands out clearest in your memory of British Columbia?" asked His Honor of the Premier of Great Britain.

"Well, to give you a purely personal and selfish answer, I should say that a piece of very wonderful lemon pie in the logging camp cookhouse of Messrs. Abernethy and Loughheed sticks most in my memory," laughed Mr. MacDonald.

Since the return from abroad the Lieutenant-Governor has been anxious to pay a visit to that famous logging camp near Port Haney, and on Tuesday he realized his ambition. He was accompanied by his niece, Miss Margaret Mackenzie, and a party of friends, including Mrs. J. W. Stewart, Miss Margaret Rogers and Miss Capt. Atwood of H.M.S. Despatch. Hon. S. L. Howe and Mrs. Howe, Mrs. S. F. Toimie, Hon. R. L. Maitland, George Walkem, M.P.P., T. H. Kirk, M.P.P., and Mrs. Kirk, and Leon Lachner were also guests of Hon. Nelson Loughheed and Mrs. Loughheed on this occasion.

His Honor was an interesting spectator of the system of "highlines" logging carried out on the rough hillside north of Port Haney. An expert rigging-slinger climbed 150 feet up a tree and chopped off the top forty-foot section, which came crashing to the ground.

Of particular interest and importance in this area is the wide-spread reseedling of the district, a great part of which is growing up again to a new crop of timber. Some of the new natural plantations are five years old, some are seven, others are only two or three.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

LEWIS ROBERT WILSON is up to his old tricks again. Time after time he has been remembered with and he has promised to do better. But just as he seems about to prove he has mended his ways, there he goes again, and this time he has broken the National League home-run record. At the time of writing Wilson had crashed out forty-four circuit clouts and broken "Chuck" Klein's league record of forty-three and gone into a tie with Babe Ruth for the honors in both leagues for the present season.

Wilson is one of our favorite ball players. He plays centre field for the Chicago Cubs, and his real name, or at least the one he is best known by, is "Hack". His form has all the graceful lines of a brick kiln. He fights with umpires. He argues with fans in the stands, sometimes with his fists, and "Hack" has a temper. He rocks home runs far over the wall and awes ball players on the nose.

In pinches sometimes Wilson lets the third strike wait lazily across the plate. In other pinches sometimes he loses the ball in the sun, and usually when "Hack" loses the ball, they cost the Cubs ball games. But still he is one of our favorite players.

"Hack" makes spectacular catches sometimes, and whenever he does they seem to be better catches than Tris Speaker or Ty Cobb could make. Those chunky legs of his fairly spin under him as he races to the outer wall for a long fly. He leaps, and oh, boy, what a catch! Then, again, sometimes he just stands there in centre field waiting for a nice easy fly, and when the ball gets close to him, he waves his arms over his head in bewilderment and the ball falls to Mother Earth. He had lost it in the sun.

Old "Hack" was basking in sunshine and glory the other day, with the Cubs ahead in the ninth, when another one of those terrible things happened, the same thing that happened in the World Series last year and cost the Cubs one of the games against the Philadelphia Athletics. "Hack" lost one in the sun and it went for a home run. The St. Louis Cardinals won the game.

He's a castoff, you might say—one of those McGraw castoffs. He was with the New York Giants three years, but in 1926 John McGraw decided he didn't want Wilson any longer, so he sent him away. Chicago rescued him from Toledo.

Wilson fights and works every minute of a ball game. His bat has brought the Cubs victory after victory, but so have his legs. He never knows just what "Hack" is going to do. He's always in earnest, always trying, but he's just human, after all.

Some of the lads in the press box say he gets his name by his resemblance to an old-fashioned hack. Others say they call him that because he has the physical proportions of Hackenschmidt, the old wrestler.

"Hack" can make the greatest catches in the world. He can hit the ball as far as Ruth and as often. And he can make the greatest mistakes you ever saw. One day he gets the razzberry and it seems everybody in the stands is against him. The very next day he crashes out a home run and they're all his friends.

The nation has become air-minded, self-minded, radio-minded, and there's better than a slim chance that we're becoming Tom Thumb-minded.

Lott says he will quit tennis before he becomes a "tennis bum." Or a racketeer, so to speak.

Tennis to-day is the most international of all games. The same rules of play are observed in all the advanced countries of the world.

Sharkey to Meet Victorio Campolo On September 25

New York, Aug. 28.—A contract between Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, and Victorio Campolo, South American, providing for a fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium September 15, has been signed.

The agreement also obligates Sharkey, if he defeats Stribling, to meet Max Schmeling, world's champion, next June.

Empire Athletes Give Opponents a Man-sized Lesson

British Empire Representatives Win One-mile Relay, Four-mile Relay, Two-mile Relay, Two-mile Steeplechase and Three-mile Team Race in Gigantic Meet on Soldier Field; Power of U.S. in Field Events Gives Them Championship by Score of 9 to 5; Eight Meet Records Smashed.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—When the lights went out over Soldier Field yesterday evening the United States had won nine and the British Empire five events of the English-speaking track and field events. The United States won by marked superiority in the field events. Great Britain and the Dominions were unable to score a solitary point in these. Had their power in the field been comparable to that on the track the situation would have been reversed.

The Empire captured the one-mile relay, the four-mile relay, the two-mile relay, the two-mile steeplechase and the three-mile team race. On the other hand they lost the pole vault, shot-put, high jump, 480-yard shuttle relay, hammer throw, broad jump, javelin throw and mile medley relay. Eight meet records were smashed.

The British gave their opponents a man-sized lesson in the distance runs. The four-mile relay was a race until R. H. Thomas of England, hooked up with Ray Canger of the Illinois A.C. in the final mile. Thomas, who did 4:14 in winning the mile in the Empire Games at Hamilton, Ont., last week, stayed near Canger until the last half-mile, but from there on he stepped out and at the finish had a lead of seventy yards over the United States ace. His mile was run in just a fraction over 4:15, and was as impressive as any performance in the meet.

The British were no less superior in the two-mile relay. The first half of the race was a contest, but Phil Edwards, former New York University negro star, competing for British Guiana, ran R. B. Betham Jr. of Pennsylvania Railroad A.C. in the second half, and left T. Hampson of England with nothing to do but hold a twenty-yard lead over Orval Martin of Purdue. Western Conference and National Collegiate middle distance champion.

MANY RECORDS FELL
Records started falling in the first event. Russell Sweet, former Montana sprint star, Cy Leland of Texas Christian University, George Simpson and Edna Toland did 4:15 in the 400-yard relay to defeat Leigh Miller of Canada, W. B. Legg of South Africa, E. L. Page of England and Johnny Fitzpatrick of Canada, and better the former mark of 3:74.

The Empire came back with a superb performance in the mile relay, racing it in 3:16.8. K. C. Bragwin, first British runner to drop the baton near the end of his lap, but no protest was made and the victory was allowed to stand for the Empire. He was followed by A. Golding of Australia, W. J. Walters of South Africa, and Alex Wilson of Canada.

Steve Anderson of Seattle, formerly of the University of Washington, put the baton in the last lap of the two-mile steeplechase relay in such style as to nullify the efforts of previous American runners and cause the British flag to be raised.

Both Eddie Toland, world record holder in the 100-yard dash, and George Simpson of Ohio State, were to save them from the one-mile medley relay. The event became an all-American affair. Ralph Metcalfe, negro ace from Tilden Technical High of Chicago, and national junior A.A.U. champion in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, finished first in .09.8, with Hector Dyer, Stanford University, second, and Charlie Farmer of North Carolina, third.

James Demers of Los Angeles, National A.A.U. javelin champion, finished his arm in his first throw, and was unable to try again, but the rest of the American team, Lee Bartlett of Albion College, and L. D. Welton of Iowa, were good enough to offset his loss and score a victory.

BRIX WINS SHOT PUT
Herman Britz of the Los Angeles A.C. led the United States victory in the shot put with an effort of 50 feet 5 inches, while Walter Parry of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, led the high jumpers at 6 feet 6 inches.

Tom Warne of Northwestern University was easily the class of the pole vaulting field, with a leap of 13 feet 5 1/2 inches. Carl A. B. Haines of Penn State topped the broad jumpers at 23 feet 3 3/8 inches.

The results follow:
Relay, 400 yards—Won by United States (Russell Sweet, Cy Leland, George Simpson and Eddie Toland); second, British Empire (Leigh Miller, W. B. Legg, E. L. Page and John Fitzpatrick); Time, 3:75. New meet record, former mark, 3:74.
Relay, four miles—Won by British Empire (J. F. Cornes, Jack Walters, William Whyte and R. H. Thomas); second, United States (G. Yenske, Paul Bekker, Rufus King and Ray Canger); Time, 17:22.4. New meet record, former record, 17:23.2, made by British Empire team in 1928.

Shuttle hurdle relay, 480 yards—Won by United States (Lee Sentman, J. E. Hatfield, Charles Kestor and Steve Anderson); second, British Empire (J. Q. Davies, J. H. Viljoen, P. B. Gaby and Lord David Burghley); Time, 5:05. New meet record, former record, 5:01.8, made by United States in 1924.

Relay, four miles—Won by British Empire (J. F. Cornes, Jack Walters, William Whyte and R. H. Thomas); second, United States (G. Yenske, Paul Bekker, Rufus King and Ray Canger); Time, 17:22.4. New meet record, former record, 17:23.2, made by British Empire team in 1928.

High jump—Won by United States with aggregate height of 59 feet 9 inches; Walter Parry, 6 feet 6 1/2 inches; Anton Burg and H. Lasalle, tied at 6 feet 4 1/2 inches; second, British Empire, 17 feet 9 1/2 inches (C. E. B. (Concluded on Page 14)

CANADIAN STARS ARE IMPRESSIVE

Dominion's Athletes Give Brilliant Exhibition at Chicago Meet

Wilson Runs Well; Miller, and Walters Star; Williams Is Missed

By WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
Soldier Field, Chicago, Aug. 28.

As they always have done when the Empire called, the sons of Canada contributed immensely to the British Empire's gallant attempt to score its first victory in track and field over the United States on historic Soldier Field yesterday evening.

Great Britain was defeated for the third time, nine events to five, but the showing of Canadian athletes was impressive.

Led by Jack Walters, Alex Wilson and Johnny Fitzpatrick, the Maple Leaf contingent played a part in Great Britain's victories in the four-mile relay, the mile relay and her great attempt to take the final event, the one-mile medley relay.

In the opening event, the 400-yard relay, Leigh Miller gave the Empire a lead in the first 100 yards, but his mates were unable to hold it against the flashing speed of Eddie Toland and George Simpson, and even a great attempt at the finish by Johnny Fitzpatrick was of no avail.

WILSON BRILLIANT
Alex Wilson ran a beautiful race in the mile relay to give the Empire a sensational, record-smashing victory. Wilson had a scant yard on Vic Williams, National A.A.U. quarter-mile champion, Fitzpatrick was of no avail.

Jack Walters was an important cog in Britain's amazing four-mile team, although his performance was overshadowed by that of R. H. Thomas of England. Walters was pitted against Paul Reker of Pennsylvania State College, who had a lead of three yards as they started the race.

Pickard off form
Vic Pickard and A. Gilbert, Canadian pole vaulters, led their team, but both, and Pickard especially, were off form. Pickard was able to clear only 11 feet 11 inches, far short of his best, which is around 13 feet. C. Herman contributed a throw of 42 feet 4 1/2 inches to beat Britain's lead in the shot put while T. J. Portland leaped 5 feet 10 inches in the high jump.

The absence of Percy Williams, double Olympic winner for Canada in the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam, hurt the British chances immensely. Had he been available in the 400-yard relay there might have been a different result, and had he been able to run in the mile medley, again the outcome might have been favorable to the Empire's cause.

Enterprise Will Meet Shamrock V In Yacht Classic

Smallest of Four U.S. Defenders Selected to Defend Famous America's Cup in Series With Sir Thomas Lipton's Challenger Next Month; Committee Selects Enterprise in View of Sailing Ability in Light Air; Harold S. Vanderbilt Will Skipper Defender.

By TOM HORGAN, Associated Press Writer
Newport, R.I., Aug. 28.—Enterprise, smallest of four sloops built this spring as prospective defenders of the America's Cup, to-day found herself bearing the responsibility of maintaining Columbia's rule over Britain's yachtsmen, established in 1851.

In that year the yacht America whipped eighteen of England's fastest racing yachts in a race around the Isle of Wight and brought to these shores a $500 cup of doubtful beauty, which has since been cherished as the greatest of all yachting trophies—the America's Cup.

Through her selection yesterday evening by the America's Cup committee of the New York Yacht Club, Enterprise, skippered by Harold S. Vanderbilt, was delegated to meet Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth challenger, and the fourteenth challenger since the cup was won by the America in 1851.

Enterprise's selection came after she had won two straight races. In races sailed over various courses, in various weather conditions, in some of which not all of the candidates took part, Enterprise took most first places.

Announcement of the committee was Enterprise beat Wetmore in their two match races of the official trials, but Yankee twice whipped Whitehead, and it had been expected the selection committee would send Enterprise out against Yankee before making a decision. Enterprise's most recent victory, last Thursday, was in time which broke previous yachting records for the thirty-mile triangular course.

ARE GAMBLING
Possibly the committee was influenced in its choice by the presence of the Shamrock V in the harbor. Sir Thomas Lipton's sleek green sloop has been going around the harbor in Narragansett Bay during the last few days and making remarkably good time in air so light the committee refrained from starting the defender candidates. Undoubtedly the Enterprise could sail circles around any other candidate in the longer losing streak—which ended only bow to Yankee in heavy weather. The committee, therefore, is thought to be gambling on the likelihood of the international classic being sailed in light air.

Enterprise was designed by W. E. Burgess for a syndicate headed by Vanderbilt, which included, among others, George Baker Jr., F. L. Cuyler, George Whitney, E. W. Clark, Sherman Hoyt and W. W. Aldrich. Mrs. Aldrich broke a bottle of champagne over the bow and bestowed the name of a little naval schooner which taught the Bey of Tunis a lesson in international etiquette many years ago. She carries a crew of 100 men and a 100-horsepower engine.

The Philadelphia, who had lost five straight games, and the Boston Braves who had lost four, met in the other National League clash, and it was the longer losing streak—which ended Philadelphia won by a 6 to 3, score.

CLEVELAND DROPS TWO
The Chicago White Sox gained the big American League triumph of the day, taking a clear hold on sixth place by winning a 14 to 5 victory in the first game, then outlasted the Cleveland Indians to take a 5 to 4 decision in the second.

The double victory put Chicago a full game ahead of the St. Louis Browns, who rode through to a 5 to 3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

BROOKLYN ARE STILL A THREAT

Robins Come Through With Smashing Win Over Giants to Gain on Chicago

Although Brooklyn's recent record made it appear that the Robins long-heralded "crack," finally had arrived, the team which led the National League longer than any other this season, is far from being out of the pennant race.

The Robins opened the series with the New York Giants by slamming out a 7 to 2 victory yesterday.

The Robins picked up a lap on the league leading Chicago Cubs, who found some rough going against the Pittsburgh Pirates and lost the final clash of their series, 10 to 8, in a wild hitting struggle.

St. Louis remained a half game behind Brooklyn by winning its eighth straight game, 2 to 1.

The Phillies, who had lost five straight games, and the Boston Braves who had lost four, met in the other National League clash, and it was the longer losing streak—which ended Philadelphia won by a 6 to 3, score.

Eighteen-year-old Canadian Youth Is Second In Big Swim

Isador Spondor, Port Coborne, After Leading From Fourth Lap, Beaten Out in Home Stretch by Marvin Nelson in $10,000 Toronto Marathon; Wins $2,500; William Goll, New York, Third, and George Glagden, Memphis, Fourth; Anna Prillar Benoit, Only Woman Entry, Quits Upon Request of Officials.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—A world's championship and $10,000 in cold cash was yesterday's achievement for Marvin Nelson, broad-shouldered six-foot youth from Port Dodge, Iowa.

Nelson completed the fifteen-mile swimming marathon staged by the Canadian National Exhibition in 7 hours 43 minutes 36 1/2 seconds, a new world's record. Just a few minutes before 8 o'clock in the evening he paused at the roar of the finish gun and lifted high both hands as greeting to the vast crowd massed along the lake front. Successor to George Young, Ernst Vierkotter, and Eddie Keating, he was the new champion of the world in long-distance swimming.

The Iowa boy showed little signs of his long struggle when he emerged from the water, but appeared to be still in perfect condition. He talked no more than was necessary, but beamed his smile on everyone. Asked what he would do with his prize he replied: "There are many things I can do with $10,000." He stated he would probably swim next year.

Seven minutes after Nelson came Isador Spondor of Port Coborne, Ontario, the eighteen-year-old boy who suddenly jumped into fame, year. From the time when Frank Pritchard dropped out in the fourth lap until he was passed by Nelson at the beginning of the last lap, Spondor led the race, swimming sixty-two strokes to a minute, an unusual pace. He missed first prize only to win $2,500.

NEW YORKER THIRD
William Goll of New York was third, taking $1,000.

Fourth place and $750 went to George Glagden, the fair-haired youth from Memphis, Tenn.

Fifth and sixth were men famous for the triumphs of other years, Ernest Vierkotter of Cologne, Germany, and Toronto; and Norman Ross of Chicago. Only three swimmers finished outside the money—Clarence Rose of Brooklyn, N.Y., Paul Eggen of Farmington, Conn., and Alfred Sully of Toronto.

All others were compelled to leave the water. Anna Prillar Benoit of Miami, Florida, only woman who entered the swim, although six were eligible, persisted until the end when she still had more than two miles to go. She wanted to go and finish but was required to stop by officials. Miss Benoit swam fifth in the women's swim on Friday, August 22.

Among the swimmers who dropped out during the race was George Young, Toronto's hope, who succumbed to stomach cramps. He announced he was through with marathon swimming and swimming of all kinds. "This is the end," he said.

FOREMAN KNOCKS OUT GENARO

Victoria Juniors Dominate Championship Tennis

Helen Campbell and R. Kirkbride Are In Three Finals

Two Victoria Youngsters Appearing in Six Finals at Duncan To-day; Joan List Nosed Out in Semi-finals of Singles; "Joe" Rithet Is Defeated; Kirkbride Plays Great Tennis to Eliminate Tisdall; Meets Eric Leoney To-day.

Special to The Times

Duncan, Aug. 28.—Two young Victorians will make a bid for three titles each when the finals of the Island junior tennis tourney are played on the courts of the Duncan Lawn Tennis Club here this afternoon. Ronnie Kirkbride and Miss Helen Campbell won their way into the last round of all six under-eighteen events yesterday and are favored to carry off the majority of the titles to-day.

Kirkbride qualified to meet Eric Leoney of the home club in the singles, while teamed with A. G. (Binky) Tisdall he will contest the doubles against Milne and Foran of Vancouver. Miss Campbell is favored to win her singles encounter from Miss M. Partington, and will then pair with Miss "Frankie" Oldham against Miss Joan List of Victoria and Miss Susie Milne of Vancouver. In the mixed doubles Miss Campbell and Kirkbride face Miss S. Milne and C. Milne of Vancouver.

Miss Joan List nearly made it an all-Victoria final in the girls' event, but dropped a bitterly fought three set encounter to Miss Partington in the semi-final 10-6, 6-5, 6-3.

KIRKBRIDE PLAYS WELL

Kirkbride was at the top of his form yesterday and won two matches in the singles without a great deal of difficulty. His fast twist service was almost impossible to return on the sun-baked courts, and he had enough big guns to break through his opponent's deliveries whenever a game was needed. He had quite a tussle with Tisdall in the afternoon, but had too many strokes for the Duncan corner and eliminated him in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2. Kirkbride and Tisdall ran into strong opposition in their doubles encounter with Hill and Keenen, but after taking the marathon first set at 12-10 they had no trouble with the second.

Miss Campbell allowed Miss P. Britton but one lone game in their semi-final encounter. She is strongly favored to repeat her victory in the B.C. junior tournament when she meets Miss Partington to-day. Miss Campbell and Miss Oldham won one of the longest duels of the day in the semi-finals of the doubles. They were taken to the tenth game of the third set before they were able to subdue the Thwaites sisters, Pam and Pat, at 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss "Joe" Rithet was eliminated in the quarter-finals of the girls' under sixteen event, losing to Miss Oldham in straight sets, 6-4, 6-1. ## COAST PROS. ENGAGE IN NOVEL COMPETITION

Phil Taylor, popular professional at the Victoria Golf Club, and Dave Black of the Shaughnessy Golf Club, Vancouver, engaged in one of the most unique competitions of their golfing careers at Banff recently. Taylor and Black took part in a nine-hole match with two Stony Indians as their opponents. The Indians, however, played their own game, known as archery-golf, in which they use bow and arrows. Taylor and Black won the match 2 and 1, but they were forced to play the nine holes in two under par in order to gain a victory. Taylor declares it was the most novel match he has ever engaged in. The Indians stand on the tee and shoot their arrows down the fairways. Located on the green is a six-inch block and they have to hit this with their arrows, instead of shooting a ball into the cup. "They can hit these blocks every time at fifty feet," declared Phil. "I had a wonderful time, and the Banff course is one of the most wonderful in the world and represents the masterpiece of Stanley Thompson, the famous Toronto golf course builder." In the above picture are shown Chief Walking Caribou, Dave Black, Taylor and Chief Lane Walker. The two white players were judges during the Prince of Wales golf tournament, for which His Royal Highness donated the trophy, the only golf prize ever donated by the royal family.

THIS IS THE HOME OF MAJESTIC RADIOS

A few days of rest brought a marked improvement in the performances of the National League members of the Big Six: Bill Terry, Babe Herman and Chuck Klein collected six hits among them, and all but Terry improved their averages. The Big Six leader hit only once in three times at bat, and held his mark at .408. Herman rapped out three hits in five times up, and lifted his mark two points to .388. He gained a tie for fourth place with Klein, whose two hits in four trips to the plate produced a one-point increase. All the American Leaguers were idle.

TO DEMONSTRATE DIAL TELEPHONE IN CITY OFFICE

City Land Department Will Share Fort Street Office With Telephone Company

The British Columbia Telephone Company has arranged with the City Council for rental, until October 31, of a portion of the Fort Street office of the city lands department, and on September 15 will invite the citizens of Victoria to inspect an installation of automatic telephone apparatus, similar to that shown at the Willows Exhibition last week, which was a point of interest to 17,000 visitors.

The downtown display will synchronize with the visits to homes and offices of a "flying squad" of expert instructors, who will explain how the new telephone must be used and will also invite telephone users to view the downtown demonstration installation.

List of Prize Winners in Rifle Meet Obtainable

The list of prize winners in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's associate membership fund has just arrived in the city, and any person desiring a copy can obtain one at Morris Cigar Store, Government Street. A number of Victorians shared in the proceeds.

CHOOSE LESS POWERFUL CLUB AND PLAY FULL SHOT

Very much the same results follow when the player is in two minds about what club to use or how hard to hit the ball. The feeling of uncertainty usually causes him to hit the shot half-heartedly or to attempt at the last instant to put in a little extra power which he feels he needs. When there is any doubt about the shot to play it is my idea that the best plan is to select the less powerful club and play a full shot. But whatever the selection, the ball must be hit firmly and no changes permitted after the club is under way.

Sankey Won Attention for Wonderful Voice

"I'd like to take your little boy to Sunday school with my children," said Mr. Fraser, a kind gentleman. He stepped down and patted Ira one the head.

The Sankey family had just moved into the neighborhood. They were not yet acquainted. So their thoughtful neighbor had come over to take Ira to Sunday school.

Ira was bashful, but he was glad to go. When they started singing songs, he felt more at home. He loved to sing. At home he was always singing, until his mother called him her little songbird.

The Sunday school teacher noticed his voice, and told him he sang very well. Ira was so pleased and happy at receiving such praise, that he no longer felt like a stranger, and promised his new teacher that he would come to Sunday school every Sunday.

Ira Sankey became famous as the song leader for the great evangelist, Moody. He wrote many beautiful songs himself, one of them being "The Ninety and Nine." He was born in Pennsylvania, August 28, 1840.

Economic Riddle
Of This Depression

(From The New York Times)

Surveying the world-wide business depression in its monthly financial review, the Westminster Bank of London reaches the conclusion that "the answer to the economic riddle is to be found in a true reading of the American situation," and undertakes to explain the severe reaction here. "Judgment on that question by a trained and impartial foreign observer ought to be interesting; not less so when opinion in this country is visibly confused and perplexed. The Westminster does not dispute the contention that "the fundamentals of the American business situation are sound, the banking and credit system strong and flexible," nor does it doubt that "the march of the United States to greater wealth and power cannot in the long run be impeded." But it points out two factors in the existing situation which, it believes, explain the extent of the trade reaction and make its duration uncertain:

"The first is the 'property campaign' itself, which has succeeded by purely artificial means, and especially through the increased propagation of the system of instalment buying, in maintaining luxury—or at any rate non-essential—consumption at an un-justifiably high level.

"The second arises from the choice of this moment, when the country is interested in largely answering the rapidly growing need for exporting its surplus, for an all-round and substantial heightening of the tariff wall."

Probably the general view here would be that the tariff, though no doubt an aggravating influence, was hardly a primary cause; but the London bank's theory of a break-down because of overstimulated consumption is more interesting. It largely answers the frequent question, why trade reaction should have been so acute when American industry as a whole had not indulged in over-production in the old-time sense. As regards instalment buying, it is true that, since the business depression began, there have been surprisingly few defaults on contracts of that kind. Yet it is hardly unreasonable to suppose that the glamor of full employment and exceptional business profits met with a sudden check, the mere continuance of contracts, made at the height of speculative enthusiasm, must have added to the public's inability to make new purchases.

Nobody denies that the sweeping release in present demand means that consumption had struck a pace, a year ago, which in the nature of things could not be maintained. It is carrying inference only a little further to conclude that a greatly diminished community had been living beyond its means on borrowed money, and had suddenly been faced with the necessity of drastic retrenchment. The Westminster's survey of the situation is cautious about prediction. Like all other competent observers, it considers that the United States, along with the rest of the world, must adjust itself to the changed position created by falling staple prices before economic recovery can be really effective. It finds the American situation "full of enigma and paradox"—such as the fact that a large wheat or cotton harvest is talked of as a calamity—and it regards as a complicating influence
"the very slow and partial way in which, with us as with other countries,
"retail prices are following the downward curve of wholesale prices."

Yet this cautious British observer is not gloomy in regard to the longer term, even in Europe. The existing economic problems are great, so it thinks, "are the weapons which modern science places in our hands, the science of thought and the science of invention. The coming of steam revolutionized the nineteenth century. The twentieth century has been productive of inventions which similarly may be crucial steps in motion the forces of a new prosperity."

This was perhaps the most important and inspiring lesson of the great revival of American business prosperity
after the agonies of the "great deflation." There is little reason to doubt that the sequel to the present industrial readjustment will be determined by the same influences.

said at the Medical Information Bureau of the New York County Medical Society.

Doctors here have expressed some surprise that neither Dr. Huber Kahle, the originator of the treatment, nor Dr. Harry P. W. Peters, who is making experiments with it in a small sanitarium on Liberty Road, in Englewood, N.J., will disclose to the world the formula, for which they both claim a great deal.

Dr. Peters, recently returned from Germany, where he studied Kahle's treatment in Cologne, explained that the first steps toward making public the mysterious ingredients of the formula are being undertaken. He has retained lawyers to patent the medicine "to protect it from abuse," and as soon as this is done, the proprietary rights will be given to the world for which they both claim a great deal.

The patient is put to sleep for ninety-six hours and the medicine is administered. On waking, Dr. Peters claims, a large percentage of patients are completely and permanently cured, most of them developing a positive aversion to drugs.

Dr. Kahle has been working on the formula for ten years in Germany.
According to an investigation conducted for the Academy of Medicine here, the German doctor has endured many bitter attacks by his fellow physicians. It is believed that these attacks are a deformity from birth account for a certain misanthropy on his part and may also account for his reluctance to share with the medical world a secret which he considers important.

The investigator for the academy
also points out that "a man was here from Germany a year ago trying to get some American or group of Americans to buy the cure. He asked $50, 000 for it, it is understood. Dr. Kahle was then to divulge his secret."

Dr. Iago Gladston of the Medical Information Bureau said yesterday:
"Doctors here cannot understand his attitude. Why, when Banting discovered insulin, the remedy for diabetes, he made his secret available to the entire world at once. His action was in the best tradition of the humanitarianism of the profession."

MOVIE ACTOR IS SECOND BEST IN HOT FIGHT

Harold Duncan, Brother of Vivian, Wins Over R. Lease in Hollywood

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 28.—Harold Duncan, brother of Vivian Duncan, has been elected to the position of second best actor in the world, according to the results of a poll taken by the Hollywood Film Guild. The poll was taken by a vote of the members of the guild, who are the leading actors and actresses of the world. Duncan was elected by a vote of 100 to 90 over R. Lease, who was elected first best actor. The poll was taken by a vote of the members of the guild, who are the leading actors and actresses of the world. Duncan was elected by a vote of 100 to 90 over R. Lease, who was elected first best actor. The poll was taken by a vote of the members of the guild, who are the leading actors and actresses of the world.

The fight started, according to witnesses, shortly after Lease and Duncan met in the cafe, a place much frequented by Hollywood's motion picture elite. The brother of the famous dancing sisters was seated at a table with his father, S. H. Duncan, and two companions when Lease entered. The actor was pointed out to Duncan as the man who had beaten Vivian Duncan at a Malibu Beach cottage and in a few moments a torrid battle ensued. The participants struggled around the cafe and out into the lobby of an adjoining hotel, where they were separated.

LANIGAN TELLS ROTARIANS OF LOYAL QUEBEC

Prosperous People Descendants of Heroic Pioneers, W. B. Lanigan Says

Fine Progress With Pageant at Armories Reported to Rotary Club

The past and present of the historic province of Quebec and its people were this afternoon reviewed by W. B. Lanigan in an address before the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel. He ascribed racial prejudices to the fact that the English and French speaking peoples of Canada were of alien origin, but the differences had been minimized with the passing of the years following the union of Upper and Lower Canada.

Jacques Cartier, in 1534, after cruising in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, anchored below the cliff which now bears the name of Quebec citadel, and on the crest had erected a cross. Twenty-nine years later Bishop Laval founded the seminary of Quebec, now Laval University. "To the men who directed the wilderness we owe introduction into Canada of religion and education," said Mr. Lanigan. He told of Champlain, the first governor of New France, and of the Marquette who first sailed down the Mississippi, Maisonneuve, the founder of Montreal, and many others.

Tribute was paid to the heroic women of the early days who struggled beside the sturdy settlers when they held at bay the savages who attacked the settlements. The speaker stated that Sir George Carter and Sir Wilfrid Laurier both owed their great characters to heroic pioneer women.

NO RIGHT TO CRITICIZE Mr. Lanigan protested that people speaking English with pronounced dialect had no right to criticize the purity of the French tongue spoken by the people of Quebec, especially in view of the yearly exchange of professors between the Paris Corbienne and the universities of Quebec.

By the treaty of Paris and by law the Quebec people were guaranteed their rights to language, church and ancient laws, and they could not be blamed for tenaciously maintaining these privileges.

LOW DEBT AND TAXES Quebec had the lowest per capita taxation and debt of any province in Canada, and also had the greatest water power development in the Dominion. The splendid trunk roads, happy villages and the peaceful life of the habitants were sketched. Mr. Lanigan declared that no province had more loyal Canadians than Quebec, whose population is entirely descended from hardy settlers who arrived more than 300 years ago.

President Bruce reported upon the visit to the Port Angeles Rotary Club yesterday, warmly praising the entertainment provided.

T. P. McConnell reported splendid progress with rehearsals for the pageant to be held shortly at the Armory. He called for a group of girls from ten to twelve years of age for a special number to rehearse on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium.

Mr. McConnell announced that Rotarians will be enlisted to sell several thousand tickets, members being divided into ten ticket-selling committees.

An added attraction at the pageant will be a superlatives sale, only a few dollars being included.

Reginald Hinks asked for volunteers for the crew of H.M.S. Rotary, to be presented at the Armories for three of the four days of the pageant. Of thirty-five men required, over twenty enlisted at once. The first rehearsal will be held at 5 o'clock to-morrow evening at the Chamber of Commerce. An entirely new script will be provided by Mr. Hinks, the original having been lost.

DEATHS CAUSED BY HEAT WAVE IN EUROPE

Much Discomfort in British Isles; Seven-year Record Broken

London, Aug. 28.—Most of Europe sweltered today in a continuation of a heat wave of the last few days, which has taken at least eight lives from prostration in Great Britain.

The hot weather again caused much discomfort in the British Isles and was also felt in western and central Europe, where high temperatures for this time of year were recorded. In Germany 90 degrees was registered yesterday and Italy had similar high figures, while France, Belgium and Spain also suffered. Several industries in Bilbao, Spain, suspended work.

As far as Great Britain was concerned, the thermometer to-day registered 82 degrees Fahrenheit at 3 p.m., and oppressive humidity made conditions worse.

The lightest of summer garb is being worn and outdoor swimming pools are crowded. In one Sheffield laundry the work girls were allowed to wear bathing costumes to escape the heat. The temperature here rose to 83.5 degrees Fahrenheit at 4 p.m., one and one-half degrees more than yesterday's maximum. The day was the hottest recorded for seven years and the hottest in August for nineteen years.

WITNESS SAYS PROHIBITION MAN BRIBED

At Seattle Trial Rum Ring Operator Says He Paid Money to Official

Seattle, Aug. 28.—Bribes of $1,000 and $724 were paid directly to William M. Whitney, then assistant prohibition administrator, in May, 1923, Jack McBride, member of the Grays Harbor rum ring, testified at the Lytle-Whitney conspiracy trial here to-day.

McBride said he was eating in a restaurant in Aberdeen when a waiter told him a man in another booth wanted to see him. The man, he said, was Whitney.

MORE AFTER PROTEST Whitney asked him, he testified, if he was making any money and he took him up to his hotel room and offered him $1,000. Whitney protested it was not enough, he said, and he went out and collected $2,000 among his bootlegging associates. He gave Whitney only $1,000 of this money, however, and later when he met Whitney again he gave him $724 out of another fund of $1,448 collected from bootleggers. He told the balance for himself, he said.

His dealings with Whitney were terminated at that time, he said, because Whitney said the money was insufficient to make it worth while.

COURT HEARING FOLLOWS DEATH

Vancouver, Aug. 28.—Injured in a fight August 23 in the 100 block of Powell Street, Erling Scholovich, Dunsmuir Street, died in the Vancouver General Hospital at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

John Johnson, 845 Georgia Street, was later arrested on a charge of manslaughter, as the alleged assailant.

Police were first notified of the case shortly before Scholovich died, and according to the report of investigating detectives the man engaged in a fight with another on Powell Street. He was injured and taken to his home in a taxicab.

He was admitted to the hospital August 26, where his condition became gradually worse. He lapsed into unconsciousness Wednesday and did not rally.

Johnson was remanded upon appearance before Magistrate J. H. Shaw in police court this morning.

Drought Retards Trade Somewhat, Says Brookmire

The sum total of effects caused by the drought is unfavorable and the return of business to normal will be somewhat delayed, says the Brookmire Economic Service Inc.

The outstandingly favorable implication of the crop report of the United States Department of Agriculture, as we see it, is that the drought, which has prices have probably been stabilized, at least until South American supplies begin to come on the market after the first of the year.

"Corn is the crop which is most directly affected by the drought. The government crop report places the indicated crop at 2,200,000,000 bushels, based on conditions as of August 1.

"The results of the corn shortage on general business will be adverse, except in so far as an increase in the price of wheat is brought about. Farms will be depleted by forced sales of livestock. The general level of prosperity in the corn belt will be lower. The drought will, of course, result in a somewhat lower employment of farm labor."

FRUIT PRICES DROP Toronto, Aug. 28.—Prices of domestic fruits and vegetables broke 10 to 30 per cent in Toronto commercial markets yesterday, as heavy shipments from producing areas began to arrive.

EVERETT PULP FIRM CHARGES B.C. DUMPING

Puget Sound Pulp and Lumber Co. Seeks Anti-dumping Duty

Washington, Aug. 28.—The Treasury is conducting a preliminary investigation into the request of the Puget Sound Pulp and Lumber Company of Everett, Wash., for an anti-dumping duty on wood pulp. Canada is included in the complaint.

The complaint alleges companies in Finland, Norway, Germany and Denmark are buying low priced material from Russia, processing it and dumping the wood pulp into this country. In the complaint against Canada no charge is made of use of Russian pulp wood.

Marathon Swimmer Is Saved By Boy

Toronto, Aug. 28.—One of the many oarsmen who accompanied the swimmers in yesterday's marathon here turned out to be a hero when Jimmy Major, sixteen-year-old Toronto lad, rescued from drowning, Eli Radakovich, who had collapsed toward the end of the swim. Radakovich, who had a hitch-hike here from Etobicoke, Pa., to compete, was going down for the third time when he was rescued by the Toronto lad, who is only half as big as the rescued man.

REPUTATION OF DEBT TOPIC OF DISCUSSION

Canadian Press Cable via Reuters' Sydney, Aug. 28.—If Australia should repudiate her debts it would be the first time on record that a Dominion of the Empire had failed to meet its obligations, and the result would inevitably be the closing of the doors of international finance against the Commonwealth, said Professor Theodore E. Gregory here to-day. Dr. Gregory, who is professor of banking in London University and is a noted economist, is now on his way back to England.

Reputation was attempted by the professor continued, the British bondholders would organize themselves to take action in Australian courts.

Although no member of the government of Australia and no responsible politician has declared himself in favor of debt repudiation, the Labor Party of New South Wales and other bodies have been demanding cancellation of obligations since the position of the Commonwealth was shown by the report of Sir Otto Niemeyer, Bank of England expert, to be serious.

COAL OUTPUT FELL IN JULY

Island Mines Increased Output; Provincial Total Fell 26,420 Tons in July

Although the coal mines of Vancouver Island produced in July 1.8 per cent more than was dug in the same month last year, the aggregate coal production of British Columbia as a whole suffered a decline of 26,420 tons during last month, compared with July, 1929. Figures of the Provincial Department of Mines show that the total coal produced by the province dropped from 163,538 tons in July last year to only 137,118 tons last month. At the same time the Vancouver Island mines increased their output from 72,550 tons to 74,697 tons.

Messages Sent To Ship With Body Of Andree Aboard

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 28.—Scandinavian radio stations today began calling at intervals to the steamer Bratvaag, Dr. Horn's expedition trip, to hasten to Norway with the bodies of Salomon August Andree and his polar companions, found in the Arctic after thirty-three years.

The calls, taking an emergency form, are directing the steamer to make all speed to avoid danger to its precious cargo, which might be lost if the unfolding to the world of the tragic story of the Andree polar balloon flight.

Swift storms, with the possibility of disaster to the vessel in the Arctic and the loss forever of the story of Andree's fate as chronicled in the diary found with the bodies on White Island, prompted the Norwegian and Swedish governments and scientists to co-operate in dealing with the situation.

The understanding here to-day was that the Bratvaag has radio receiving apparatus although not equipped to send dispatches.

VANCOUVER BOY KILLED BY WAGON

Vancouver, Aug. 28.—Bunny Smith, two, of East Thirty-fourth, was almost instantly killed at 10.45 a.m. to-day when he was knocked down by a horse and run over by a milk wagon in front of his home. According to police report, the wagon was operated by the City Dairy, East Pender Street.

Marjory Underwood, eight, told the police the small boy was playing with other children on the street and ran beside the wagon, which was proceeding westward. She said the horse reared and knocked the child. The wheel of the wagon passed over his head.

Business Drop Likely to Moderate From Now On

Although the decline in business is continuing, the bottom is near and further declines from this point will be moderate, according to the latest report of the Brookmire Economic Service Incorporated.

The report continues: "It now appears that the final figure for our July business index will be around 83 per cent. A figure of 83 per cent for July will mean that August will be continued to the downward trend, probably to somewhere around 80 per cent."

The chief factors which will cause the decline to continue will be steel, construction and carloadings. As recently as June the steel industry was operating at approximately 98 per cent of normal. July showed a drop to about 84 per cent. August will show another sharp decline. It should be noted that these figures represent percentages of a calculated normal. Figures which appear from day to day in the financial pages of the newspapers are stated in terms of percentages of capacity."

AT THE THEATRES

BEAUTIFUL REVUE AT THE DOMINION WITH MANY STARS

A romantic story of youthful love, spectacular musical numbers, hundreds of beautiful dancing girls and an all star cast make "The New Movietone Follies of 1930," which came to the Dominion Theatre to-day for a three-day run, an outstanding production since the advent of audubon pictures.

It surpasses its predecessor, "The Movietone Follies of 1929," in all departments with a greater cast and a story which would stand on its own merits without the elaborate arrangements provided by the numerous musical numbers.

The cast includes such favorites as El Brendel, Marjorie White, Frank Richardson, Noel Francis, William Collier Jr., Miriam Segar, J. M. Kerrigan, Yola D'Avril, Huntley Gordon, Paul Nicholson and many others, well known on screen and stage.

William K. Wells, author of many Broadway musical successes, wrote the story and the dialogue and it is undoubtedly the best thing he has done to date.

ORIENTAL DANCES AT THE COLUMBIA BY CARLOTTA MONTI

Carlotta Monti is in demand whenever rhythmic dancing is to be done in a picture.

The Italian lady appears in African sequences of "The Second Floor Mystery," Warner Bros. and Vitaphone mystery, comedy-melodrama featuring Grant Withers and Loretta Young, now at the Columbia Theatre. Miss Monti has made a specialty of Oriental, Egyptian, Hindu and Hula dances.

Grant Withers and Loretta Young are supported by H. B. Warner, Claire McDowell, Crawford Kent, John Leder, Sidney Bracy, Claude King, Judith Vosseli, Cosmo Kyrle Bellew and others. Roy Del Ruth directed. The picture is based on the novel, "The Agency Column," by Earl Derr Biggers, author of "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

THRILLING PICTURE OF THE UNDERWORLD AT THE PLAYHOUSE

Unless one knows the vernacular of the underworld, the command, "Take him for a long ride," given by Sam Hardy to his gang relative to Lloyd Hughes in a scene of "Acquitted," the Columbia all-talking drama of the underworld playing at the Playhouse Theatre, may sound very innocent. In reality, it is of deadly import.

The coming of the phrase "for a ride" is credited to a notorious criminal who disposed of his enemies by inviting them for an automobile ride into the country where their dead bodies would later be found with no clues to incriminate the killer. Now, Crystal Garden—Swimming and Dancing.

DOUBLE OFFERING PLEASING PATRONS OF THE COLISEUM

There are no polar bears or Eskimos below the Antarctic circle.

"The North Polar cap of the globe is crowded when compared with Antarctica," says William Vander Veer, Paramount cameraman, who, with his partner, Joseph Becker, brought back a complete film record of Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd's South Pole expedition. This picture, "With Byrd at the South Pole," is the feature of the Coliseum Theatre programme for the last three days of the week.

"When I was with Byrd near the North Pole," says Vander Veer, "we were meeting Eskimos or running across bears, caribou and musk oxen. The Arctic seemed quite populated. But despite the fact that the North Pole is located on an ice field while the South Pole is in the centre of a continent, conditions are altogether different at the latter extremity of the globe. During the twenty months we spent at Little America, our nearest neighbor was 2,300 miles away."

An added attraction at the Coliseum this week is Nancy Carroll in "Sweetie."

MAGNIFICENT PARK SCENE IS FEATURE OF CAPITOL FILM

A complete park, with huge trees and flower beds was built on the huge sound stage where "King of Jazz" was photographed, for the beautiful "Bench in the Park" number of the picture, which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre. Paul Whiteman and his entire band are starred with John Boles, Laura La Plante, Glenn Tryon, Jeanette Loff, Grace Hayes, The Sisters G. The Rhythm Boys, Al Norman, Paul Howard, Billy Kent, The Box Sisters, The Market Dancers, the Hollywood Beauties and a host of other stage, vaudeville and screen stars featured in the all-Movietone, all-Technicolor production, which was directed by John Murray Anderson.

Hollywood's Best Director Is One of Least Known

He is one of the outstanding directors in the entire motion picture industry and yet he is one of the least known. The man of whom we are speaking is Alfred E. Green, who a few weeks ago was selected as the best director of last year in a poll taken among 300 newspaper and magazine critics by a national motion picture trade publication.

ALFRED GREEN

the former two starring George Arliss and the latter having John Barrymore in the leading role.

DIRECTS ARLISS FILM

Now Green has come through with another real masterpiece, Arliss's third talking film, "Old English," in which Arliss gives one of the most outstanding characterizations ever seen on the screen.

It is interesting to glance over the life and nature of this man, who apparently has risen so quickly from nowhere. As a matter of fact, however, although young in years is one of the real old-timers of the film racket. But Green is naturally reticent. He talks freely on the subject of pictures but becomes practically tongue-tied where his own accomplishments are concerned. That, largely, is responsible for his present degree of obscurity.

Green's association with filmdom dates back to 1912 when he started to "earn the business" by working as an extra, toting camera and doing odd jobs in the old Selig studio.

AS ENVIABLE RECORD

Even in those days he was backward when it came to talking about himself but the records show that in later years he directed a host of very successful silent films, among them being Mary Pickford's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and "Through the Back Door," Thomas Meighan's "Back Home and Broke," "Woman Proof" and "Pied Piper Malone," Colleen Moore's "Sally," "Treasure" and "Ella Cinders." Quite an enviable record for a man who is supposed to have just come up from nothing, isn't it?

Strangely enough, in view of the fact that Green has earned his present day rating as a director of articulate films, he never has had the remotest connection with the legitimate stage. And stage training is considered by many as a necessary requisite for success in the talkies. The solution to that is that Green works on the theory that he still is making motion pictures. To him pantomime still is all important. He doesn't try to see how much he can make his players speak but gives them lines only where they are necessary.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)
Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—Wheat market was a quiet affair to-day, with only a small-sized mixed trade passing, and prices mostly held within a range of half a cent. There was considerable selling at the start and prices declined about one cent, the market looking heavy, but offerings increased after the first period and a little buying by commission houses and for Chicago account, combined with a little short covering, the market then recovered the early loss and held steady slightly under the previous close.

Despite the fact that country marketings were 3,307,000 bushels, there was very little hedging by the elevators to-day, although on the extreme upturn there was wheat for sale.

Export sales were small and unimportant, a little business being done after the close of the market Wednesday, but there was nothing coming in this morning. The cash market was dull and uninteresting, with shippers doing very little. Shippers said they were unable to sell or get bids on their stocks now in the east.

Numerous light showers over the west yesterday and cool temperatures are forecast for to-night. Black Sea shipments this week total 2,552,000, almost 2,000,000 coming from Russia.

Sentiment appeared to be a little more friendly to wheat, many feeling that prices have now reached such a low level after steady downward march that the market is due for some reaction. We have little hope of higher prices at present, but feel wheat can be bought on returns for quick profits. Wheat closed 1/2 to 1/4 up.

Coarse grains: These markets steady and firm, strength in corn being a factor, but there was very little going on and the demand for cash grains showed no improvement.

Flax: No feature, with little interest being shown. Closing price 1/2 to 1/4 higher.

Liverpool due unchanged to one-half higher on Winnipeg.

The Dancing Floor

By JOHN BUCHAN

Vernon asked her about supplies. She had brought a store with her which was not yet exhausted, but the people sent up food every morning. Miti found it laid on the threshold of the main door. Curious food—barley cakes, and honey, and cheese, and eggs, and dried figs. She couldn't imagine where they got it from, for the people had been starving in the winter. Milk, too—plenty of milk, which was another unexpected thing.

Water—that was the oddest business of all. The House had a fine well in the stableyard on the east side. This had been sealed up and its use forbidden to Miti. But morning and night buckets of fresh water were brought to the door—whence, she did not know. "It rather restricts our bathing arrangements," she said.

She told the story lightly, with a ready laugh, as if she were once more mistress of herself. Mistress of her voice she certainly was, but she could not command her eyes. It was these that counteracted the debonaire tones and kept tragedy in the atmosphere.

Vernon, as I have said, had not the reason which I had for feeling the gravity of the business. But he was a scholar, and there were details in Kora's account which startled him.

"Tell me about the food again. Cheese and honey and barley cakes, dried figs and eggs—nothing more?"

"Nothing more. And not a great deal of that. Not more than enough to feed one person for twenty-four hours. We have to supplement it from the stores we brought."

"I see... It is meant for you personally—not for your household. And the fathers? You don't know what spring it comes from?"

She shook her head. "There are many springs in Plakos. But why does our commissariat interest you?"

"Because it reminds me of something I have read somewhere. Cheese and honey and barley cakes—that is ritual food. Sacramental. If you like. And the water? Probably brought from some sacred well. I don't much like it. Tell me about the people here, Miss Arabin. Are they very backward and superstitious?"

"I suppose you might call them that. They are a fine race to look at, and claim to be pure Greek—at least the coast folk. The interior people are mongrels, but they are handsome mongrels and fought bravely in the war. But I don't know them well, for I left when I was a child, and since my father died I have only seen the people of Kynaetho."

"Kynaetho?" Vernon cried out sharply, for the word was like a bell to ring up the curtain of memory.

"Yes, Kynaetho. That is the village at the gate."

Now he had the clue. Kynaetho was the place mentioned in the manuscript fragment which he had translated for me. It was at Kynaetho that the strange rite was performed of the Kore and the Kora. The details were engraved on his memory, for they had turned them over repeatedly in his mind. He had thought he had discovered the record of a new ritual form;

rather it appeared that he had stumbled upon the living rite itself. "I beg—no to understand," he said slowly. "I want you to let me speak to Miti. Alone, if you please. I have done this work before in the war, and I can get more out of that kind of fellow if I am alone with him. Then I shall prospect the land."

He found Miti in his lair in the ancient kitchen. With the old man there was no trouble, for when he found that his interlocutor spoke Greek fluently he overflew in confidence.

"They will burn this house," he said finally. "They have piled fagots on the north and east sides where the wind blows. And the time will be Easter eve."

"And your mistress?"

Miti shrugged his shoulders. "There is no hope for her, I tell you. She had a chance of flight and missed it, though I pled with her. She will burn with the house unless—"

"Unless—?" said Vernon.

"There is a rumor in Kynaetho of something else. In that accursed village they have preserved tales of the old days, and they say that on the night of Good Friday there will be a dance on the Dancing Floor. There will be a race with torches, and he who wins will be called King. To him it will fall to slay my mistress in order that the Ancient Ones may appear and bless the people."

"I see," said Vernon. "Do you believe in that rubbish?"

"Miti crossed himself, and called the Panagia to witness that he was a Christian and, after God and the Saints, loved his mistress."

"That is well. I trust you, Miti; and I will show you how you can save her. You are allowed to leave the House."

"Every second day only. I went yesterday, and cannot go again till tomorrow. I have a daughter married in the village, whom I am permitted to visit."

"Very well. We are still two days from Good Friday. Go down to the village to-morrow and find out all about it. Lie as much as you like. Boy, you hate your mistress and will desert her whenever you are bidden. Get your confidence on the other side. Get their confidence. A madness has afflicted this island, and you are the only sane Christian left in it. If these ruffians hurt your mistress, the Government—both in Athens and in London—will send soldiers and hang many. After that there will be no more Kynaetho. We have got to prevent the people making fools of themselves."

"Your mistress is English and I am English, and that is why I stay here. You do exactly as I tell you and we'll win through."

It was essential to encourage Miti for the old man was patently torn between superstition and fear and fidelity to Kora, and only a robust scepticism and a lively hope would enable him to keep his tail up and do his part. Vernon accordingly protested a confidence which he was very far from feeling. It was arranged that Miti should go to Kynaetho next morning after breakfast and spend the day there.

After that, guided by the old man, Vernon made a circuit of the House. From the top windows he was able to follow the life of the land—the postmen gates to the shore, the nest of stables and outbuildings on the east, with access to the shallow glen running up from the jetty, the main entrance and the drive from Kynaetho, the wooded demesne ending at the cliffs, and the orchards and olive yards between the cliffs and the causeway. The patrols came right up to the House wall, and on various sides Vernon had a glimpse of them. But he failed to get what he specially sought, a prospect of any part of the adjoining coastline beyond the little bay. He believed that his yacht was somewhere hidden there, out of sight of the peasants. He was convinced that the Epitrope would obey orders and wait for him, and would not go one yard farther away than was strictly necessary. But he was at a loss to know how to find him, if he were united up in this shuttered mausoleum.

He returned to find Kora sewing by the window of the breakfast room. He entered quietly and had a momentary glimpse of her before she was conscious of his presence. She was looking straight before her with vacant eyes, her face in profile against the window. A figure of infinite appeal. He had a moment of acute compunction. What he had once thought and spoken of this poor child seemed to him now to have been senseless brutality. He had called her lawless and vulgar and shrill; he had thought her the ugly product of the ugly after-the-war world. But there she sat like a muse of meditation, as fine and delicate as a sword-blade. And she had a sword's steel, too, for had she not faced unknown peril for a scruple?

"What does Miti say?" she asked in a voice which had a forced brightness in it.

"I shall know more to-morrow night. But I have learned something. You are safe for the better part of three days—till some time on Good Friday evening. That is one thing. The other is that your scheme of wearing down the hostility of your people has failed. Your islanders have gone stark mad. The business is far too solemn for me to go on smooth things. They have resurrected an old pagan rite of sacrifice. Sacrifice, do you understand? This house will be burned, and if they have their will you will die."

"I was beginning to guess as much. I don't want to die, for it means defeat. But I don't think I am afraid. And you see—life is rather difficult. And not very satisfactory. But tell me more."

Horoscope

FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1930

This is rather an uncertain day, according to astrology. Adverse influences appear in the horoscope.

Runners of war will be much banded about by merchants and manufacturers, who may expect unusual trade activity in certain lines.

Much demand for the services of lawyers and increase of litigation are forecast for the autumn. Civil suits will multiply. Criminal cases will congest the courts, the seers foretell.

Under this planetary government youth and old may seem to stress their own importance. Racism may be even more than usual rampant in the United States.

Writers may meet temporary disappointments under this star, which makes for changed demands in literary circles.

In the evening of this day lovers may be rather lucky. The stars smile mildly upon romance.

Mars is in a place supposed to be of perilous moment to persons who have gained success. Falls from high estates are foreseen.

Handfuls of wide scope and misuse of money will be much in the public print before the beginning of the year. It is forecast.

Newsprinters will have many sensational events to chronicle as the autumn progresses, the seers prophesy.

Runners of war will be much banded about by merchants and manufacturers, who may expect unusual trade activity in certain lines.

Prisons are to focus attention in the coming fall and needed changes in caring for the inmates will be brought about, astrologers declare.

Education and medical care will diminish the number of the homeless of society, those who read the stars predict.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the luxury of a year marked by favors and friendships. They should be careful of entrance to a career.

Children born on this day probably will be unusually successful all through their lives. Rumors of war will be much banded about by merchants and manufacturers, who may expect unusual trade activity in certain lines.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Shipwreck

(Copyright, 1930)

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Will anything happen?" asked Baby Bunty, as she held fast to the coat-tails of Uncle Wiggily.

"What do you mean—anything happen?" spoke the bumpy gentleman, looking down at the little orphan rabbit.

"Mean will we sink or be drowned or have a shipwreck or anything like that?" went on Bunty, taking a firmer hold of Uncle Wiggily, for they were pitching and tossing in the ocean waves.

"Ipeck! Ipeck! I want a 'ipeck!' said Tootsie, one of the newest little baby rabbits who had come to Uncle Wiggily and his wife in the summer seaweed bungalow cottage at the shore. "Daddicus, make 'ice 'ipeck!' begged Tootsie.

"Pooh! She doesn't know what it means!" cried Buster. "None of your 'ice 'ipeck!' nonsense. The girls know what a shipwreck is! It's when you go down and live on an island and eat coconuts and oranges and play with monkeys; isn't it, Daddicus?"

"I know what a shipwreck is!" cried "Jingle."

"So did I!" said Jangle. "It's when your boat falls down an' goes boom on a rock, or something in the ocean, and you get washed out and live on an island and eat coconuts and oranges and play with monkeys; isn't it, Daddicus?"

"What does Miti say?" she asked in a voice which had a forced brightness in it.

"I shall know more to-morrow night. But I have learned something. You are safe for the better part of three days—till some time on Good Friday evening. That is one thing. The raft picked up and down.

"Well, those shipwrecks are like that," Mr. Longears answered, looking down the side of his pink, twinkling nose at the pitching, lolling raft on which he and many of his children were riding the salty waves of the ocean. "And, to answer Baby Bunty's question, I think something is going to happen, and it may be a shipwreck."

"Oh, goodie!" cried Bunty. "Then I want a coconut!"

"I want an orange! I want an orange," sang Jingle.

"Pooh! I'd rather have a monkey. Then I'll get a hand organ!" said Buster. "And we'll go around and I'll play music and my monkey will take the pennies and we'll get rich."

"Maybe there won't be anybody on the desert island where we're going to be shipwrecked to give you pennies," said Bunty. "The best to take oranges or coconuts."

"All right. Then I'll take a coconut!" decided Buster.

"No, you can't," chose a coconut nut first!" cried Bunty.

"Oh, Daddicus! Is Bunty going to have all the coconuts?" shouted Jingle. "Oh, I think that's mean!"

"Now hush, please! All of you! Begged Uncle Wiggily, reaching out and catching hold of Tootsie just in time to stop her from rolling off the raft into the water. "I must think what is best to do. I didn't expect the raft would take us on a sea trip. But, since it has, we must make the best of it."

"And get shipwrecked on a desert island!" said Buster.

"I hope we see a lot of monkeys!" murmured his brother Custer.

"Dear dear!" sighed poor Uncle Wiggily, who was all upset with the thought of having gone adrift from its anchor. What with that and seeing that Tootsie, Woodale and the other little rabbits didn't want to get lost and found, he was all upset with the thought of having gone adrift from its anchor.

Why the Ability to Keep a Secret Is Essential to a Happy Marriage — Pathetic Wife of Fault-finding Husband — Mystery Without a Solution

DEAR MISS DIX—Should a wife have any secrets from her husband? Should she tell him everything or keep things that are strictly her own private affairs to herself? EDITOR O.

Answer—Of course, a wife has a right to her own secrets. Just as a husband has a right to his. The old charge that women talk too much goes double for the home. Half of the trouble they get themselves into with their husbands is because they blab things they should have kept to themselves and it brings on an argument that ends in recrimination and tears.

There are plenty of things that a woman shouldn't tell her husband. Why, for instance, should a man who is overburdened with business cares and anxieties have superimposed upon him all of his wife's domestic worries? No reason at all. He can't prevent the cook from giving notice or the chambermaid from breaking a pet vase or the baby from bumping its nose or Johnny from bearing his trousers. Yet there are thousands of women who feel that it is a sacred obligation upon them to tell their husbands everything that has gone wrong in the household during the day. And there are thousands of men who dread to come home of an evening because they will have to listen to the litany of their wives' troubles.

Every woman who has been married long enough to cut her wisdom teeth has found out that there are certain subjects that have the effect upon her husband that a red rag does upon a bull. It may be religion or politics or the length of skirts or the hobbling of hair or the use of lipstick. Often it is her family. Nearly always it is when she quotes mother.

Here is another place where women talk too much when they do not maintain a masterly silence on these topics. Because you do not insist upon making your opinions a casus belli does not mean that you give them up. Far from it.

The only women in the world who do what they want to do are those who never discuss their plans beforehand.

Most husbands don't really care what their wives do, within reason, but when they are consulted beforehand they feel that they have to object in order to show their authority. But if wife just goes along and does it without debating the subject they think it is all right. And, anyhow, after a thing is done, it's done and there isn't any use in raising a row about it.

Women talk too much when they tell their husbands about the mistakes they make. Virtually every man takes his wife at her own valuation, and if she is always telling him what a poor manager she is and how she doesn't seem able to get as much out of her allowance as Mrs. Smith does, and of how she let the butcher shortchange her, and of how she wishes she could cook like Mrs. Simpkins, pretty soon he begins to think that he has a pretty poor makeshift of a wife who isn't any account and who wastes his money.

But if she is always telling him what a grand bargain she made at a marked-down sale and how she traded off the ragged for a new tin saucer and brags to him about how competent she is, she "sells" herself to him as a blue-ribbon prize winner and he boasts of her among his friends.

Also, it is the woman who talks too much who puts her husband wise to the fact that she is getting old or fat and first suggests to him that she could lose him. The chances are that he hasn't noticed it and was still seeing her she looked the day he married her.

Wise is the woman who chucks her biscuits that turn out heavy into the garbage can and puts the lid down on them, who sticks her bad bargain into the back of the closet and says nothing about them and who lets her husband discover her first grey hair for himself.

The old proverb which says that silence is gold and speech is silver is never so vividly illustrated as in matrimony, where silence buys peace and speech is only too often the price of a fight, so if you want to be happy though married, learn how to hold your tongue.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married two years and have two babies. My husband has a terrible temper. I do everything I can to please him, but he finds fault with everything I do. It seems to me that he only comes home to see what else he can quarrel about. I don't want my home broken up. I love my babies and my husband. I have no money and no place to go, but I can't stand this any longer. What shall I do? ALWAYS CRYING.

Answer—Poor, sick, worried, overworked mother with too many babies and a fault-finding husband, I could cry with you to think how sad and how hopeless is your lot, for what can you do but endure it?

If you had money you could take your children and go away from your fault-finding and abusive husband. If you had parents to whose home you could flee as to a city or refuge, you might be free from him, but you have neither. Bitter as your fate is now, it would be more bitter if you were wandering the streets with your babies in your arms with no roof to shelter you, listening to them crying for food that you could not give them.

A poor woman with little children is as absolutely in her husband's power as any slave ever was in the power of his owner. He can treat her as he will and she has to endure it for her children's sake.

And I know of nothing that reflects so harshly on human nature as the fact that so many men use the knowledge that their wives cannot defend themselves to treat them worse than they should a dog. They curse them, they insult and revile them, they beat them and the poor creatures cannot leave because they cannot desert their children.

There is no way to make a fault-finding husband quit fault-finding nor is there any way to make him treat you more kindly, because if he were not cruel by nature and did not enjoy tormenting a helpless thing he would understand that you were worn out with taking care of two babies that have come too close together and that you are sick and nervous and he would be tender and patient and kind to you.

But stop crying. It does no good. Wipe your eyes and brace up and make the best of things. Quit worrying over your husband's fault-finding. Don't listen to it. If you try you can become as indifferent to it as to the buzzing of gnats about you.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am young. I am good-looking. I dress well. I have an entertaining line of conversation. I am not a prude. Why is it that girls less attractive than I am can walk right in and take any man who is paying me attention away from me? P. P.

Answer—Neither Solomon nor the seven sages can answer that question. The way of a snake on a rock and a man and a maid are two of the insoluble riddles of the ages. We can only say that it is a matter of personal magnetism and when we say that we substitute one mystery for another.

One woman has that intangible something about her that draws men to her as a magnet draws steel. Men swarm about her as bees about a honeysuckle and she may take her choice of a husband from a score of men.

Another woman, better looking, more intelligent, her superior in every way, has never a heart to wear herself with and lives and dies an old maid. Why this is thus, neither men nor women know.

DOROTHY DIX.

Col. Ayres Sees Attack of Gloom Possible

"Business sentiment and business statistics have moved in opposite directions during the past month," says Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, in his monthly review of business conditions. "Business sentiment has rather definitely improved, following the low point of the wave of pessimism that prevailed late in June and early in July. Meanwhile the figures of business have been getting worse 'instead of better.' Industrial productions dropped to new levels in many lines in July. Railroad transportation shrank notably, and both wholesale and retail trade lagged badly. "Oppressive heat and prolonged drought have prevailed over wide sections of the country, and threaten to cause serious harm to growing crops. Most of the second quarter earnings reports that have been made public show seven shrinkages in corporate incomes. Despite these unfavorable conditions the movement of security prices has reflected the growing confidence that improvement impends. Bonds have been strong, and stock prices moved up almost continuously from late June to the closing week of July. "It seems clear that definite improvement is going to come slowly. It is almost certain that figures for industrial production and for transportation will be better in August than in July, and that an upward trend will be in evidence in September. Nevertheless, while these changes will be in the right direction, they do not promise to be emphatic, and there is some likelihood that before they become apparent business sentiment may suffer another attack of gloom. "Just as stock prices after a bear move often suffer a secondary reaction, so there may be a secondary reaction of sentiment, making a double bottom for pessimism. "In a seasonal sense business is now moving with the tide instead of against it. Industrial production always slows down in the summer and quickens in the autumn. July is normally a low month, with August showing a definite improvement, and September an even greater one. Freight movement increases in even greater proportion during these same months. These betterments may be confidently expected this year, and the improvement they usher in will probably prove more than merely seasonal."

Transvaal Rocks Are Duplicated, Geologist Finds

New York, Aug. 26.—Professor Edward Sampson of the department of geology, Princeton University, yesterday at Princeton, N.J., announced through the Associated Press discovery of a rock formation in the Stillwater district of Montana similar to that on the west in South African Transvaal.

Rocks of the crystalline structure were found by Professor Sampson during an expedition to Montana sponsored by the university.

The discovery provides geologists of this country with a more accessible region to study the fundamental processes of the rock formation and is important from a commercial standpoint. Chromite, used in manufacture of rustless steel, is present in the Montana formations.

DEPRESSION END NEAR? MOODY MAKES FORECAST

As in all major depressions, the puzzling adjustment of commodity prices now tends to monopolize financial interest. It has revived the familiar controversy as to the relation of prices with the world supply of monetary gold, although the Wall Street consensus is that this is an academic problem not closely related to the existing fact of depression or prospective revival.

In the practical economic sense, the most widely held view probably is that we are paying the penalty for the existence of large overproducing capacity. In an interesting discussion of this point, Moody's Investors Service says:

"It is characteristic that this realization of overcapacity invariably appears in times of depression and pessimism. It is forgotten or minimized in times of prosperity, although it exists then to the same extent when measured in relation to normal. It is merely being used in a different degree. Overcapacity, each period of overcapacity such as complained of in 1927, in 1921 and in 1908 is presently followed by new business expansion.

"Furthermore 'overcapacity' is often confused with improvement of methods or 'rationalization,' as Europeans say. We may comfort ourselves with the thought that this tendency of progress is as old as mankind itself. If producing capacity were to be kept strictly down to the level of actual demand, no progress would be possible. As it is, we have 'overcapacity' merely because old buildings, obsolete machinery and antiquated methods cling tenaciously alongside new, modern and more efficient plants.

"If a reduction of costs all along the line is gradually achieved, and is partly reflected in prices, there is no reason for great concern on this account.

"Finally, general overcapacity in the strict sense of the word is an economic absurdity, for human wants are almost unlimited and no capacity exists to satisfy them all. It is, therefore, a problem of relative, rather than absolute, overcapacity or overproduction that we are confronted with. And this problem, in turn, is reduced to a purely banking problem—that of financing adequately the realization of consumers' wants.

"Carl Snyder estimated a few years ago the total amount of money loaned from one class of people to another in the United States at close to $130,000,000,000. As against this, the value of retail trade was estimated at about $40,000,000,000.

"And yet, it is this relatively small amount of consumers' money that determines at what prices total production will sell. It is relatively easier to finance large production at stable prices, even in periods of deficient gold supply, than it is to sell it to consumers at stable prices.

"Apparently then, the question of financing consumption adequately—apart from the question of gold supply—is something to be considered. It one admits that adequate additions to gold supply are needed to offset deflation and in their absence a larger amount of credit per unit of gold—then one commends himself to a system of regulated inflation as a cure for deflation. If, in turn, progressive overcapacity is admitted as the cause of deflation, then again some method of regulated inflation will have to be resorted to as an offset to progressive and inevitable deflation. That sounds logical. Instead of recognizing this logic, however, the world proceeds calmly to pile up dreaded 'overcapacity' (it is always cheerfully financed) but at the same time it scoffs indignantly at any attempts at 'inflation,' not excluding the time-honored and innocuous device of installment buying. These things, it is said, learnedly, lead to 'overconsumption.'

"It is true, however, that, in a narrower sense, relative overproduction, or overconsumption, does take place as a cyclical occurrence and it is in such a cycle of price readjustment that we have found ourselves at the moment. How far it will proceed before it turns up again is largely a matter of conjecture.

"While precedents have only a limited value, it may be interesting to note that declines in commodity prices in the past fifty years have averaged about twenty months each. Furthermore, they had a tendency to be prolonged in periods of downward secular swings and to be shortened in periods of upward secular swings.

"The high point of prices prior to the current decline was established in September, 1928, although the decline became 'really drastic' since August, 1929. A purely mechanical forecast, therefore, would indicate the end of this year as a reasonable turning point in prices. It is, however, quite possible—even probable—that some commodities will begin to harden ahead of that date. It has, indeed, been customary for prices to become relatively stabilized several months before the actual upward turn. Definite signs of stabilization are still lacking, although fluctuations have become narrower, the number of declines has begun to decrease and several important commodities have approached what has been termed their apparent resistance points, as indicated by their statistical position and costs of production.

"Nevertheless, stocks of most commodities, although they are in process of downward correction, are still ample and it is doubtful whether a general small secondary decline, before prices can enter definitely upon an upward course."

Summarizing its outlook on the general business situation this organization adds:

"We see no conclusive signs as yet that business will stage a strong immediate revival, although we are already very near the turning point. Inventories of goods are being reduced, but slowly and commodity prices have not yet shown definite evidence of stabilization. Employment, and particularly payrolls, continue to fall, and further pressure may be exerted on wages. Depression in other countries, while not becoming worse, is still acute and conditions in the long-term capital markets do not favor an immediate improvement."

VALUE MAY FALL AS PRICES DO

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN
The wise shopper will bear in mind that values can fall just as readily as retail prices.

At a time when the business and financial news is giving attention to the slowing up of industry and to decreases in commodity prices, certain types of manufacturers and merchants try to reap a temporary profit from the current popular psychology. Merchandise which has a superficial similarity to the accustomed wares is sometimes offered at great reductions in price. It looks like a great bargain. In reality, however, this merchandise has been specially made for such sales out of inferior materials and with inferior workmanship. In such cases the price may be low but the value is even lower.

Honest merchants are offering many things at honest reductions in price. It is only fair to them—as well as to you—to inspect with particular care any merchandise offered to you far below what you know it is worth if it is what it purports to be.

NOTED COLUMNIST ENTERS POLITICS TO FIGHT FOR JOBLESS

Heywood Brown to Run as Socialist in Silk Stocking District

New York, Aug. 27.—Heywood Brown is going to run for Congress. The Socialist Party announced yesterday that Mr. Brown (or plain Brown, as he refers to himself in his columns) has accepted the designation for representative from the 17th Manhattan district to run against Representative Ruth Pratt, Republican, and Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky, Democrat.

The 17th includes the plutocratic residential areas east and west of Central Park and runs as far south as 14th Street. It is already marked as one of the lively sectors of the fall campaign before Brown entered politics.

"This is a silk stocking district, I am told, but there is plenty of rayon still in it," observed Brown in a statement which he left behind when he went to his summer home in Connecticut.

The Socialist Party declared that it would make the "Brown contest one of the outstanding battles of the national congressional campaign."

Brown himself declared:

"This is not an escape. I am not just a comic columnist out for a lark. This fight is going on and it won't end until we win. It might as well be now."

In accordance with the party's regard for political precepts concerning the futility of August campaigning by hurling a full column at its opponents and several other political office holders.

Unemployment is to be his "constant theme." He got interested in it last spring, organized a "Give a Job 'Till June" movement, and joined the Socialist Party.

In his initial column Brown said: "Mayor Walker waited until the disease of unemployment was at its height before he lifted a finger. And as a matter of fact, he didn't lift a finger. He opened his mouth after being urged by Norman Thomas, from the wings."

WHY WAIT FOR NOW?
"The only friendly thing that could have happened would have been a blizzard. The Mayor's slogan seemed to be 'No snow, no work.' Another winter is coming on and we must do something more than appoint a day of prayer in all the churches for snow."

"As for President Hoover, everybody knows that when the people asked him for bread he gave them proclamations. Perhaps they would have done better if they had pretended they were Belgians."

"It's futile to say that the great government of the United States cannot house and clothe and feed and insure people who are in a bitter need through no fault of their own. The government has done exactly this thing. In fact it insisted on clothing a good many people who had no desire to be clothed. The government provided the equipment for a government that can break the Hindenburg line ought not to be terrified by a bread line. Do we have to be mad at somebody before we organize industry?"

LET THE SINKING SINK
"By now voters ought to know that the only difference between a Republican and a Democrat is that one is in office and the other wants to be. Mr. Hoover's record of doing absolutely nothing for unemployment is precisely the same as that of Mayor Walker. Indeed, so cruel has been the attitude of the major parties in regard to the jobless that they weren't even willing to have the subject mentioned. People were supposed to starve discreetly and in silence."

"If you get hit by a Mississippi flood you may become an object of public concern, but if the even wider catastrophe of business depression afflicts you you can go down three times, or even three hundred, without any interference from public office holders. For the time being I will leave the water power issue to candidates of my party who, like Louis Waldman, our candidate for Governor, have made an intensive study of the subject."

"Personally, there is nothing I like better than talking against prohibition, but I don't see where I am going to get a chance this time, because all the major parties in regard to the thing it will somehow cure itself."

COLEMAN RUNS, TOO
"This is no 'camel in a needle's eye' affair. Anybody can join; everybody can help, and you can all hang around."

Before entering politics, Brown had embellished his newspaper career by writing several books and making one brief appearance on the stage.

His age, which to readers of his column has always seemed like a chart of the stock market, is given in Who's Who as 41. He has been a reporter and a columnist for The Morning Telegraph, The Tribune and The World, and is now with The Telegram. He has a wife, Ruth Hale, and a son.

PROTECTION BY TARIFF SOUGHT BY NURSERYMEN

Organization Formed Here to Co-operate in Asking Legislative Changes

Formation of the Victoria and District Curb, Seed Growers and Nurserymen Association was the chief business of a gathering held in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening. The new organization will have for its objects the furthering of the interests of bulb growers, seed growers and horticulturists of the Island and Province with a system of protection to the industries through tariffs.

L. E. Taylor, Col. A. W. Woods and D. D. McTavish were named as a working committee to arrange for another meeting at which permanent officers will be elected.

Mr. McTavish was appointed the association's delegate to attend a meeting of Vancouver growers with H. H. Stevens on the mainland next Friday.

The need of an organization to co-operate with eastern bodies in laying before the government the needs of the industries was stressed by Mr. Taylor, who acted as chairman of the meeting. A meeting with Federal representatives on September 8 was planned, he said.

Influx of shrubs and other nursery stock from foreign countries, competing with the home stock at bargain prices was discussed. Tariff legislation

Plans are being made to extend the organization to the rest of the island. Growers in several island centres will be asked to form local branches with a view to forming an Island association in the future.
